CHAMBERLAIN APPEALS TO ALL EUROPE FOR PEACE

Speech by Prime Minister Regarded as Calling on Hitler to Aid Appeasement in Reichstag Address Tomorrow.

BRITAIN REARMING MORE RAPIDLY DAILY

Democracies Must Inevitably Resist Any Challenge of Domination by Force, He Says, in Broadcast to World.

BIRMINGHAM, Jan. 28.—Prime Minister Chamberlain called to night on "others" to contribute to the world's peace in what was regarded as an invitation to Reichsfuehrer Hitler to help the appeasement cause when he addresses the German Reichstag on Monday.

He stressed Britain's growing strength for defense in a speech before a home town audience of business men and told of international misgivings over the future. He likened his stand to that of President Roosevelt in a declaration of inevitable resistance to efforts to rule by force.

"We have so often defined our attitude that there can be no misunderstanding about it, and I feel that it is time now that others should make their contribution to a result which would overflow with benefits to all," the Prime Minister declared.

"Today the air is full of rumors and suspicions which ought not to be allowed to persist. For peace could only be endangered by such a challenge as was envisaged by the President of the United States in his New Year message, namely, a demand to dominate the world by force."

"That would be a demand which, as the President indicated and I myself have already declared, the democracies must inevitably resist. But I cannot believe that any such challenge is intended, for the consequences of war for the peoples on either side would be so grave that no government which has their interests at heart would lightly embark upon them."

Hitler and Italian Clerics

There have been fears in some quarters that Hitler would voice before the Reichstag colonial or other demands which, in connection with Italian claims for French territory and Spanish insurrection, would heighten Europe's tension. Hitler often has used the Reichstag as a sounding board for announcements of his ambitions.

Earlier in his address Chamberlain said he believed that the French, German, Italian and British peoples wished to live on terms of friendship and understanding with each other and settle their differences, if they have any, by discussion and not by force.

He added, however: "I do not exclude the possibility that these feelings of the peoples may not always be shared by their governments and I recognize that it is with governments and not people that we have to deal."

Broadcast to the World.

Chamberlain's address, before the Birmingham Jewelers' Association, looked ahead to a critical week which may show plainly whether the world is moving toward war or peace. It was relayed through five British broadcasting corporations covering the United Kingdom and six short-wave transmitters reaching all parts of the world. A condensed version was broadcast in German in a special program directed to Central Europe.

The address was the first he had made since his Jan. 14 mission to Rome, in which he and Premier Mussolini acquainted each other with their views on post-Munich problems.

He paid tribute to Mussolini's aid in bringing peace out of the September war scare, said that without his co-operation, "I do not believe peace could have been saved," and answered critics of his Rome journey by declaring:

"We did not go to Rome to make bargains, but to get to know Italian statesmen better, to ascertain by personal discussion what was their point of view and to make sure that they understood ourselves. . . . We accomplished that."

His only direct reference to Hitler, however, was in a mention of the British-German peace dec-

ITALY TO AID FRANCO TO THE END, ORDER IN ROME INDICATES

It Says Flags Saluting Barcelona's Fall 'Will Be Hoisted Anew When Madrid Is Taken.'

(Copyright, 1939, New York Tribune, Inc.)

ROME, Jan. 28.—An official order today instructed the citizens of Rome to take down the flags "which saluted the fall of Barcelona" and which will be hoisted anew when Madrid is taken." It leaves no doubt that Italian support of Generalissimo Francisco Franco will continue until the insurgents have overrun all Spain.

The extent of the contribution made by the Italian legionnaire air force to Franco's victory—the tremendous air bombardments—which Barcelona has suffered since Dec. 20—is illustrated by figures now made public. These figures list republican machines shot down as 67, with 20 more believed destroyed and 1000 tons of bombs dropped in 8000 flying hours. The Italian losses are given as five chaser planes lost in air fights, five pilots killed, eight wounded and one made prisoner. The hospital ship Gradiasco arrived at Naples this morning filled with wounded, who were welcomed by the Prince of Piedmont.

$960,296 LOSS IN 1938
FOR PUBLIC SERVICE CO.

Traffic Declines—Deficit Is on Street Cars, With Bus Profit of $348,280.

The St. Louis Public Service Co. had a loss of $960,296 in 1938, accompanying a decline of traffic from the volume of the preceding year, when the loss was $770,706. The comparative figures are given in the December report of Henry W. Kiel, trustee operating the street car and bus system under direction of the United States District Court.

Although the accounting showed this deficit, the trustee continued to accumulate cash, having on hand and in banks at the close of the year $7,190,072. The cash accumulation results from the fact that the trustee has not been paying interest on bonds and bank loans of the company, pending reorganization. These charges, however, are taken into account in the income statement. Another possible source of cash is the sum set aside annually for depreciation—$1,726,902 in 1938—which is for replacement of worn-out property, but not always fully expended for that purpose.

The company's bus business taken by itself produced net profit of $348,280, the loss being on streetcar business.

Gross operating revenue of the system was $13,346,223 in 1938, compared with $14,044,905 in 1937, a decline of 5 per cent. Bus operating revenue was virtually unchanged from the preceding year at $3,805,684 for 1938 and $3,870,334 for 1937. Street-car fares were 105,585,014 in 1938 and 113,355,479 in 1937, a decrease of 5.8 per cent. Bus fares were 42,013,671 and 41,613,288, respectively, an increase of about 1 per cent. Combined fares were 147,598,685 for 1938 and 154,965,767 for 1937, a decrease of 4.7 per cent.

MURPHY MAKING PRELIMINARY STUDY
Attorney-General Seeks to Ascertain Whether There Is Basis for Action by Federal Authorities.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Attorney-General Frank Murphy announced today that the Department of Justice has under investigation allegations of misconduct made against United States Circuit Judge Martin T. Manton of New York, who has sat on the bench for 23 years.

The department in Washington said it had been "making an investigation...to determine whether there is basis for action by Federal authorities."

Judge Manton had held a press conference earlier in the day when it had been expected he would comment on a series of articles now current in the New York World-Telegram dealing with the Judge's business relations. The Judge said, however, he had decided to wait until all of the articles are published, after which I will determine what to say.

When informed that the Department of Justice was conducting an investigation, Manton said: "That's good. I am glad to hear it."

He charged that the World Telegram "had it in for me for a long time," and he referred reporters to his long record of written opinions as proof that his conduct had been proper.

A Justice Department official in Washington said the charges against Judge Manton developed in the District Attorney's office in New York City. Officials here declined comment.

After the appearance of the first newspaper article, Judge Manton said: "After I had time to digest it (the article), I will issue a statement which will satisfy the public that there is nothing wrong or immoral about anything I have done." He added that he was "neither an officer nor a director in any corporation or business concern."

Judge Manton is the senior Judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. His circuit, the Second, comprises New York, Connecticut and Vermont, and is regarded as probably the most important circuit because of the volume and significance of litigation.

He was appointed to the United States District bench by President Wilson in 1916 and elevated to the Circuit Court two years later.

Before his original appointment he was a law associate of the late Representative Bourke Cockran and of John B. Johnston, now a Justice of the Appellate Division of the State Supreme Court, Second department.

Judge Manton is 58 years old, a native of New York City. He received his law degree from Columbia University and holds degrees from Fordham University, Manhattan College, New York University and the University of Vermont. He is a member of the International Law Society and the New York Bar Association.

MILD WEATHER HURT SALES

Vernon Wells Co. Files Reorganization Petition, Which Court Approves.

The Vernon Wells Coal Co., Rail-way Exchange Building, in a petition for reorganization under the amended Bankruptcy Act filed in United States District Court yesterday, states that mild weather was responsible for the firm's financial position.

The petition says that the use of coal has dropped sharply. Debts to coal companies are listed at $23,174, and cash and accounts receivable at $3744. It states that the concern does not have the necessary capital to make deliveries under contracts, but if allowed the opportunity to re-establish its credit the problem will be solved.

In approving the petition, Judge George H. Moore enjoined creditors from taking action against the company. A hearing was set for March 24. The company is a wholesale concern.

Benjamin Villmer Says Confession of Damaging Autos in Filling Station Strike Was Forced.

The first of 15 charges of malicious destruction of property based on damage caused to automobiles of non-union filling station employees during a strike last year, was dismissed yesterday by a Provisional Judge Charles McCune of the Court of Criminal Correction after the defendant, Benjamin Villmer, testified a confession had been obtained from him under duress.

Villmer, a member of the Gasoline Service Station and Warehouse Employees' Union, said he signed a confession after police at the Laclede Avenue Station tied his wrists together and trussed him up with his arms behind him in such a position that only his toes touched the floor. He produced photographs taken after his release, showing his injuries and the manner in which he said he had been treated.

Possible Doctor Says

Dr. Milton Smith, a physician with offices in the Beaumont Building, to whom Villmer went after his release on Sept. 12, testified that he and other physicians examined Villmer's wrists and muscles of his arms and back, reaching the conclusion that his condition could have been caused by such treatment as he said he had received from police.

The State contended that abrasions on Villmer's wrists had been caused by spilled acid. Police testified that Villmer, in the presence of a physician at City Hospital who examined him before his release, said this was the cause of the injuries. The physician named, Dr. A. G. Klein, when called by the State, told the Court he did not remember examining Villmer because of the large number of persons he treated at City Hospital.

Confession Held Inadmissible.

Judge McCune ruled that the confession in which Villmer said he had thrown acid on the automobile of Jerry Walkowitz, 1171 Hamilton avenue, a non-union filling station employee, was inadmissible because of the circumstances under which it was obtained. He said the State had failed to prove that Villmer's injuries had been suffered before his arrest. Without the confession, the Court held, there was insufficient evidence to support the charge.

Police Lieutenant Martin Cliffe Held Inadmissible.

Not Based on Phones.

The arrests were not based in any case, so far as reported, on the use of the telephone in making bets. Police have followed that line of procedure, in recent raids on a small scale.

"We try one thing first, then another," Chief Carroll said to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "Next time we might do the same as today, or we might try something else."

Bonds for the release of the arrested men were signed by Patrick Cain, Frank Costello and Sam Nicanor, Cain having the majority of the business.

At one time, about 40 of the temporary prisoners were in the holdover waiting for the formality of bond signing and approval.

FLEISHER TALKED
ALSO PAID FOR BY

ON CLUB LETTER

Three Times Utility Footed the Bills for Polls Testing Municipal Ownership Sentiment.

Father Schwitalia Told Him His Position Was Dangerous, R. C. Hunstead Asserts.

Payment by Union Electric Co. of Missouri of the costs of three special elections at De Soto, Mo., where municipal light plant proposals have had substantial support from time to time, was discussed yesterday by a Provisional Judge Charles McCune of the Court of Criminal Correction after the defendant, Benjamin Villmer, testified a confession had been obtained from him under duress.

As in Washington, Mo., where the company's payment of the costs of two special elections was made prior to the elections at De Soto were on questions of entering into certain contracts with the company. The costs were approximately $300 for each election, when the two elections cost $537.40.

Beaten Three Times.

The first De Soto election was on renewal of Union Electric's 20-year franchise which expired in 1930. The proposal was defeated and the company has been operating in De Soto since then without a franchise.

After failure of the franchise proposal the company sought a 10-year contract for street lighting which could be granted only by two-thirds vote of the people. After defeat of this proposal at the first election at which the City Council submitted it, the company sought to have it submitted again. The second time, March, 1935, the vote was 637 against the contract to 324.

Dr. Moyer S. Fleisher, discharged from the St. Louis University School of Medicine faculty because of his association with the sponsor of the Michael O'Flanagan lecture here in May, 1937, consulted the dean of the school when the Catholic Club sent him his letter of protest before the lecture, Ralph E. Himstead, editor of the St. Louis Tribune.

Harris said the company agreed to pay for these elections before they were called by the Council, and that in each case he received the company's check before the election was held. The city's books contain no record of these transactions, and Harris said they never were entered in official records.

One Further Attempt.

One other attempt was made by Union Electric to get approval of a 10-year street lighting contract, when the City Council last July, by a vote of 6 to 1, with one member absent, approved an ordinance for the impression Dr. Fleisher had shown it and his answer to Father Schwitalia. The protest, addressed to sponsors of the Medical Bureau chapter, quoted a cable from Father O'Flanagan's Bishop in Ireland.

"All diocesan faculties removed from Father O'Flanagan April 1925, by the Bishop of Elphin. These faculties never restored by Bishop." Dr. Fleisher thus was connected with the lecture as a sponsor of the organization that sponsored it. So far as could be learned, no special group was selected to support the lecture.

Mayor Walter E. Gibson, a practicing physician who had taken office after the elections, voted that the organization in his message to the Council said: "This bill was written by the Union Electric Co. and introduced by them, and was passed by the Council without thorough investigation and without sufficient consideration."

The Mayor said that in his opinion it was not the proper time to consider this or any other long-time franchise or contract. He challenged the Council to pass it over his veto. Company representatives who were said to have again agreed to pay the election costs, let it be known they did not wish to accept the challenge, and the Council dropped the proposal.

$1,066,913 PAID LAWYERS UNDER O'MALLEY DEAL

Insurance Companies Got
$6,443,244 of Impounded
Premiums; Policyholders
Got 20 Per Cent.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Lawyers' fees of $1,066,913 were paid out of the trusted part of the impounded excess Missouri fire insurance premiums turned back to the insurance companies under a settlement negotiated by former Insurance Superintendent R. Emmet O'Malley and approved by a three-judge Federal Court at Kansas City in 1936, the Post-Dispatch was informed today.

After payment of these fees and of incidental court costs and other expenses of litigation in connection with the case, there was paid out of the trusted fund $1,443,244 to the insurance companies, which was in addition to the original payment to them of 50 per cent of the impounded premiums, or nearly $5,000,000.

A certified public accountant's report of the administration of the trusted fund was shown to a Post-Dispatch reporter by Robert J. Folone, Chicago attorney, who is one of the trustees. This report ultimately will be filed with the Federal Court at Kansas City.

$10,000,000 in Excess of Premiums.

The original fund of nearly $10,000,000 represented the excess premiums collected after the Missouri Insurance Department ordered a rate reduction of 16 2-3 per cent to be effective June 1, 1931. By filing injunction suits in Federal Court the companies caused suspension of the rate reduction order, but they were required to deposit 16 2-3 per cent of the premiums with the court's custodian, pending final disposition of the suits.

In the compromise settlement, which was negotiated by O'Malley after "Boss" Tom Pendergast of Kansas City had given it his blessing, 20 per cent of the excess premiums was to be repaid to policyholders, and the remaining 80 per cent was to go to the companies—50 per cent directly, and 30 per cent to trustees for the companies. All costs were to be paid by the companies, and the 30 per cent was segregated for that purpose. Anything remaining after payment of all costs was to be the property of the companies.

There was turned over to the two trustees—Folone and the late Charles R. Street—United States Government securities, having a face value of $2,603,714. From time to time the trustees sold these securities to get funds to pay fees and costs, and to make refunds to the companies.

The accountant's report, prepared by the firm of Walton, Joplin & Langer, Chicago, showed that up to Feb. 1, 1938, there had been paid to John T. Barker, and his associates, as attorneys for the Missouri Insurance Department, $423,600, and the trustees' records show later payments of $76,400, making a total of $500,000.

Fees paid to lawyers for the insurance companies were $366,913 up to Feb. 1, 1938, with a later payment of $50,000. The report showed, however, that $150,000 of the fund was used to pay a note to Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. of St. Louis. This represented money borrowed by a committee of the insurance companies to make a payment on legal fees before the 20 per cent was released to the trustees. This made total fees of $566,913 to lawyers for the insurance companies, the greater part of it going to Folone and lawyers directly associated with him. Folone has represented the insurance companies in rate litigation in Missouri since 1922.

What Companys Got.

Two payments out of the trusted fund were made to the insurance companies, both before Feb. 1, 1938. The first was $902,230 and the second was $451,014, the total being $1,443,244. The Missouri Insurance Department was paid $169,440 as reimbursement for expenses.

Out of the refunds they received the companies paid their agents the customary commission on the entire 16 2-3 per cent of the premiums originally impounded with the court. Folone said that former Superintendent O'Malley insisted this was part of the compromise agreement, which the companies' committee disputed but finally accepted. The agents' commissions ranged from 22 to 26 per cent of the gross amounts of the premiums, Folone said.

The court's custodian, William T. Kemper Jr., of Kansas City, is still engaged in making refunds to policyholders out of the 20 per cent allotted for that purpose. Many of these refunds are for only a few cents.

THREE SHOWS CHOSEN FOR MUNICIPAL OPERA

"Victoria and Her Hussar," "Rose Marie" and "Song of the Flame."

The names of three of the 12 productions to be presented at the Municipal Opera during its twenty-first season in Forest Park next summer were announced last night by the Municipal Theater Association.

Season ticket reservations may be made daily, except Sunday, by the Municipal Theater Association. Season ticket reservations are

SUNDAY MORNING, JANUARY 29, 1939.

"Victoria and Her Hussar," a Eu-Action of the three-act play takes place in Siberia, Japan, Russia and Hungary.

"Rose Marie" and "Song of the Flame." Their names were not been fixed, although the European production is under consideration as the season's finale.

"Victoria and Her Hussar" was produced originally in London in 1931 and has been presented in Berlin and Vienna. It was written by Alfred Grunwald and Dr. Fritz Lohner-Beda from the Hungarian story of Emmerich Foldes. A German moving picture adaptation of the play was made in 1933.

Paul Abraham, Hungarian composer, wrote a score which includes "Pardon, Madame," "One Girl Only in the World for Me," "Mama," "Land of Song," "Star of My Night," "Following the Drum" and "No Time for Anyone But You."

Two-Week Campaign to Raise $15,000 for 1939-40 Season to Open Feb. 7.

A group of more than 300 women has been formed to assist in the two-week campaign, opening Feb. 7, for a $15,000 fund for the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra for the 1939-40 season.

The chairman of the women's division of the campaign committee is Mrs. William Dee Becker. Division chairmen are Mrs. Clark Clifford, Mrs. Denman Clark, Mrs. Max A. Goldstein and Mrs. Eric Bernays. Clifford Greve Jr., general chairman of the campaign, addressed audiences at the concerts last night and Friday afternoon on the need for the fund to augment the orchestra's income from ticket sales and miscellaneous sources. He said

type had been maintained during "lean years" when there were heavy deficits.

Revenue from seat sales, he pointed out, is insufficient to meet operating expenses. The fund sought includes $30,000 to wipe out an accumulated deficit.

"The Quality Car In The Low Price Field"

—and what this means to you as a motor car buyer. It is not just an advertising slogan. It is a saying that grew out of the car itself and its service to owners. It is your guide to getting more for your money. Here are the reasons:

The Ford is "The Quality Car in the Low Price Field" because of its V-type 8-cylinder engine. Only Ford has found a way to make a car with a V-8 engine to sell at a low price.

The Ford is "The Quality Car in the Low Price Field" because it is built of exceptionally good materials. 63 different kinds of quality steel, many of them made in the Ford plant, are used in the building of Ford cars.

The Ford is "The Quality Car in the Low Price Field" because Ford pioneered fine craftsmanship in volume production, and insists upon rigid standards of precision manufacture. Ford owns and controls the manufacturing rights in North and South America for the famous Johansson gage blocks—world-wide accepted standards of measurement.

The final, distinguishing mark of "The Quality Car in the Low Price Field" is its modern design. Like the Lincoln-Zephyr and the Mercury, it has beauty of line and proportion which reflects the inner quality of the car.

We are not satisfied simply to build all the quality we can into our cars. We prove the fact that it's there. Probably no car is more thoroughly tested than the Ford.

FORD PRICES ARE LOW AND THEY INCLUDE EQUIPMENT

CONVERTIBLE COUPE	769
FORDOR SEDAN	769
CONVERTIBLE SEDAN	899

All prices are for cars delivered in Detroit—taxes extra

Both the Ford V-8 and the De Luxe Ford V-8 come equipped with bumpers and bumper guards, spare tire, cigar lighter, twin horns, dual windshield wipers, and headlight beam indicator on instrument panel, at no extra charge. De Luxe cars also have an extra tail light and sun visor, de luxe steering wheel, glove compartment lock, clock, and rustless steel wheel bands, at no extra charge.

FORD-BUILT MEANS TOP VALUE

For example, Ford alone has built a huge weather tunnel, where test cars must face the world's worst weather—endure sleet storms, sand storms, cloudbursts—in order that the Ford you buy may serve you well under every condition.

On three Ford "torture tracks," other test cars are literally driven to death over rocks, cobbles, concrete humps—then torn down to measure wear and to search for signs of strain.

No Ford car can leave the assembly line until its parts have passed 6350 separate gage inspections—many of them held to limits of one ten-thousandth of an inch.

We could save a lot of money by skimping on tests. But a car built without them wouldn't be a Ford car.

And we aim constantly to build a better car—a car that will give you more and more for your money. But you pay no more. Ford prices are still low—and even lower than they look, when you realize the desirable equipment they include.

Both construction and appearance prove that the Ford V-8 is "The Quality Car in the Low Price Field."

FRENCH NOT GIVEN
U. S. AIR SECRETS,
SAYS GEN. CRAIG

Chief of Staff Testifies in Senate Inquiry Into Government Course on Foreign Purchases.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The Senate Military Affairs Committee received assurance from Gen. Martin Craig today that no military air secrets have been divulged to foreigners, but decided, nevertheless, on further inquiry into this Government's policy toward foreign purchases of American-made war and commercial planes.

The Army Chief of Staff, it was learned, told the committee at a closed session specifically that no plane devices that the War Department considered to be military secrets were shown to a French mission which came to this country to purchase the latest type of bombing and pursuit planes. Representatives of three Government departments have aided the mission.

Craig's testimony failed, however, to satisfy some members of the committee that proper care was being taken to keep secret airplane developments in this country. They contend a regulation of long standing was broken when a representative of the French mission was permitted to go on a test flight of a plane developed for entry into competition for an Army contract.

They said that while the Army's prized bomb sight apparently was not attached to this plane, there was no evidence that full information about other accessories and structural developments of the plane itself were not made available to the French representative.

Clark, Nye, Roosevelt.

Senator Clark (Dem., Missouri), commenting on President Roosevelt's disclosure yesterday that Government officials were aiding the French in their attempts to buy military planes here, declared:

"I think it's a shocking situation to find the United States Government preparing to permit the sale of planes of the latest development to a foreign country before they are made available to this Government."

The President pointed out the plane had not been accepted by the Government and was purely a manufacturer's plane. He said, too, that some airplane factories were idle and that for the factories to get into production on French orders would place them in a position to handle speedily this country's later needs under the air expansion program.

Roosevelt said it was assumed the French orders would be substantially completed before the larger American arms program, calling for more than 3,000 planes in less than two years, got under way. No Government assistance or credit to France was involved, he said.

Senator Nye (Rep., North Dakota), said he regarded the Administration's course as being tantamount to entering a military alliance with France.

Sheppard Discusses Plans.

While he would not comment on Gen. Craig's testimony, Chairman Sheppard (Dem., Texas), disclosed that the committee intended to dig into the commercial as well as military aspects of the aviation industry.

Sheppard said the committee was concerned with working out legislation to establish a national policy, consistent with the best defense precepts, which would permit aviation plants in this country to make all of the foreign sales possible.

In this connection, he said it was necessary to "consider the fact that commercial 'duplicates' of fighting planes are manufactured and can be transformed easily into military secrets to get out."

Morgenthau Questioned.

The committee questioned Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Secretary of War Woodring yesterday. Senators declared testimony showed that William C. Bullitt, American Ambassador to France, had appealed successfully for United States' co-operation with the French military mission sent to the country to buy planes. They said Bullitt appealed to the War Department to relax its regulations and permit French observers to see the latest type of bombing planes in action.

Although Army officials were reported to have rejected this request, the Senators said, the Treasury authorized the presence of Paul Cheminlin, of the French Air Ministry, in a light bombing plane which crashed at Los Angeles last Monday.

The President said the Treasury was involved because it was interested in increasing American exports and also because its procurement division co-operated with Army and Navy supply agencies.

G. Grant Mason to Testify.

Sheppard said G. Grant Mason, member of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, would testify Monday and plane manufacturers might be called later. He added that the committee was anxious that the private airplane industry be kept as free from Government control as possible.

OUTSTED WORKMAN
SUES OFFICERS OF UNION FOR $91,000

Alex Tecklin Says He Was Blacklisted Because He Complained of Organization's Management.

Meyer Perlestein, regional director of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, four other union officers and Local 78 and the St. Louis Joint Board of the union were sued for $91,250 damages in Circuit Court yesterday by Alex Tecklin, a cloak maker, who charged he was placed on a union blacklist because he had complained of alleged irregularities in the local management of the union.

The petition, filed by Charles H. Speicher, an attorney, stated that last February Tecklin wrote international union officers that conditions in St. Louis were "detrimental to the union and its members." Tecklin requested an investigation of the conditions he reported, and their correction.

As a result of the letter Tecklin's employer was notified by Perlestein and the other defendants, "acting in concert and in furtherance of a conspiracy," that Tecklin had been suspended by the union and must be discharged, the suit stated. The defendants, besides Perlestein, are: Charles Londe, chairman of the executive board of Local 78, International Ladies' Garment Workers; Sol Mellman, chairman of the St. Louis Joint Board of the union; Isaac Margolis, president, and Sam Caplan, secretary, of Local 78.

Fired and Still Out of Job.

In carrying out the alleged conspiracy against Tecklin, "for the purpose of revenge," the defendants informed the management of the Leader Garment Co., Tecklin's employer, that failure to discharge Tecklin would result in a stoppage of work, the petition stated. A similar notice was circulated among other employers, it is said in the petition.

Tecklin was fired and was unable to get a job as a cloak maker, work in which he had 12 years' experience, his petition says. His claim for damages is based on his life expectancy at $50 a week, plus $50,000 punitive damages.

In his letter to the general executive board of the international union, Tecklin stated that Perlstein promised to secure a 20 per cent wage increase for operators and finishers in the silk dress industry in 1937, but accepted a contract giving the 1,100 women operators an increase of 50 cents a week, while 28 cutters got an increase of $5 a week to $40. A survey among 526 operators showed that the earnings of 80 per cent were less than $500 a year and that the remaining 20 per cent made up to $750 annually, the letter stated.

In the cotton dress and allied industries, Tecklin cited organization efforts among the 800 factory employees of the Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co., stating that Perlstein obtained only 30 members, whom he treated to refreshments. "The facts are," Tecklin wrote, "that since the union entered this particular field the condition of the workers has become worse."

Tecklin charged in his letter that Perlstein ordered ill-advised strikes, declaring a strike in a factory where he represented only three of the 80 workers, conducting a strike lasting 10 weeks at the Forest City Manufacturing Co., on Washington avenue, at a cost of $6000 and opening an attack on the Nell Donnelly factory in Kansas City, owned by the wife of former United States Senator James A. Reed, with the expressed intention of "doing something big to test the Wagner Act."

Other abuses listed by Tecklin in his letter involved union finances and a report that operators in one large factory were permitted to work 18 hours a week overtime when other union workers were on WPA rolls.

The International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, headed by David Dubinsky, was among the original American Federation of Labor unions joining in the CIO movement, but recently decided not to affiliate with the permanent CIO organization.

CHICAGO VOTE BOARD EX-HEAD AND TWO OTHERS ARE FREED

Judge Sustains Demurrer on Charges of False Reports on PWA Job.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Alexander J. McKay, former chairman of the Cook County Board of Election Commissioners, and two co-defendants were freed today by United States District Judge John P. Barnes on charges of making false reports on a PWA construction job. Judge Barnes sustained a defense demurrer.

Those freed with McKay were

J. H. McCaughey and J. S. Nystrom, both former secretaries of the now-defunct McKay Engineering & Construction Co.

The indictment was returned Sept. 30.

The projects concerned were two sanitary district jobs, partly financed by a 30 per cent PWA grant. The McKay company went out of business soon after the jobs were finished and the head of the company said he had lost his personal fortune because unexpected conditions had increased the cost of the projects far beyond estimates.

McKay resigned from the election commission when he was in- stockholders of the Schorr-Kolk creditors.

Text of Chamberlain's Speech; He Stands by Appeasement Policy But Cites England's Defense Gains

Thinks People of All Nations Want Peace but Agrees Governments May Not Always Share This Desire.

By the Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, ENGLAND, JAN. 28. FOLLOWING is the text of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's address tonight to the Birmingham Jewelers' Association as given out officially:

Once more I find myself in these, the direction of industry in Birmingham are not losing sight of the importance to this country of our export trade which in the past has been to so large an extent the source of our economic and financial strength.

I wish I could find words adequate to express to you how deeply I value your support and good-will and how much I am encouraged and fortified in my tasks by the knowledge that I have the sympathy and approval of so many of my fellow citizens in the work I am trying to do. For I need hardly tell you that the burden which must be carried today by the head of the Government who must, in the last resort, take the responsibility of decision in every major problem is as great or greater than it has ever been in our history and only a young fellow like myself with a good conscience and a cast iron digestion can stand the strain for very long.

Proud of City's Record.

It is a particular satisfaction to me to reflect that my native city which has long played such an important part in the industrial life of the country now has in these strenuous days acquired a new importance by reason of the contribution she is making to the defense programs. With her unrivaled supplies of skilled labor, her wealth of highly equipped technicians and managers, and ample resources of power, water and other necessary services, Birmingham acts like a magnet to industrial enterprise and I suppose no town can show a greater record in recent years of new factories and extensions of old ones very largely in connection with the rearmament program.

It is, of course, not to be expected that this activity in the production of the weapons and equipment of war will remain a permanent feature of our life. For the time being, it is a grim necessity, but we trust it is only a preliminary to return to sanity in Europe when we can devote ourselves chiefly to the arts of peace and I am confident that those who are responsible for

An Unwavering Policy.

He has often the view of this Government from the beginning, and the Munich agreement, though it is the most important illustration of its practical working, was only an incident in a consistent, unwavering policy of peace.

I go further and say that the preservation of peace last September was only made possible by the events which preceded it, by the exchange of letters between myself and Signor Mussolini in the summer of 1937 and by the conclusion of the Anglo-Italian agreement in February of last year.

Without the improvement in the relations of this country and Italy, I could never have obtained Signor Mussolini's co-operation last September, and without his co-operation I do not believe peace could have been saved.

President's Visit to Rome. Quite recently, as you know, the Foreign Secretary and I paid a visit to Rome and for that, too, we have been criticised by those who seem determined to obstruct and resist every attempt to improve international relations.

There are some who are so blinded by prejudice and partisanship that they do not scruple to belittle and belittle the representatives of this country.

They declared before the visit that we were going to Rome to surrender British interests that we were going to give up our inherent rights to Gen. Franco, that we were going to bring our friends and allies in France, and when we came back without having done any of these things, they changed their opinion and they said it was not worthwhile to have made the visit at all because nothing had come of it. Evidently, if it is necessary to please them, we have got our work cut out over it.

It is not true that nothing came out of it. We did not go to Rome to make bargains, but to get to know Italian statesmen better, to ascertain by personal discussion what was their point of view and to make sure that they understood ourselves.

We accomplished all that, and al-

With which our existence as a democracy is bound up and which to us seem to enshrine the highest attributes of human life and spirit.

It is for this purpose, for the purpose of defense and not of attack, that we are pursuing the task of rearmament with unrelenting vigor and with the full approval of the country.

Progress in Defense.

It has taken us a long time, so it has had our defenses fallen in the vain hope that others would follow our example, to get the machinery that had run down. But progress now is being made more rapidly every day in all directions.

It is now nearly three years since we started on a very large program for rebuilding and modernizing the fleet. To give you some idea of the extent of this program I may tell you that during the 12 months ending on the 31st of next March, some 60 new ships with a tonnage of about 130,000 tons will have been added to the Navy. And for the ensuing 12 months the addition will be even larger, namely, about 75 ships of 150,000 tons.

The Royal Airforce is also going ahead at an equally remarkable rate. Large factory extensions have been made and huge new factories have been or are being erected in different parts of the country. You can see for yourselves what has been done here in the Austin factory and the immense new works being erected by Lord Nuffield. In addition, we are continually increasing our capacity by the extension of sub-contracting and to show you that the results of all this activity are no longer reserved for the future you may like to know that in the last few months we have actually doubled the rate of aircraft production.

25,000 Added to Air Force.

On the recruiting side also good progress is being made and whereas in 1937 between April and the end of the year we obtained 9000 new entrants into the Royal Air Force this year the corresponding number is 25,000.

In regard to the army, I propose to say a word about the part of our program which is most frequently referred to by critics, I mean our anti-aircraft defenses. Everyone knows that last September certain deficiencies were disclosed in these defenses. We were well aware that those deficiencies existed for we were engaged on a program which was only planned for completion at a considerably later date.

But I am bound to record that at the present time there exists a certain amount of political tension in international affairs which may or may not be well founded, but which is undoubtedly holding back enterprise. That shows how closely politics are entwined with economics and finance and apart from any other consideration it justifies the efforts which the Government are continuously making to ease this tension and bring about a better understanding between the nations.

Nothing to Regret.

The proposer of this toast (apparently referring to the remarks of an earlier speaker) has said something about the events of last September which culminated in the Munich agreement.

A great deal of criticism has been directed against that agreement and against the action I took in attempting to bring about a peaceful solution of a problem which was nearly involved in the world in a catastrophe of the first magnitude.

The criticism has come from various quarters which are perhaps only unanimous in one respect, namely that they take a less favorable view of the actions of His Majesty's present Ministers than you have been good enough to indicate. But there is one feature common to all critics. None of them has the responsibility that lies upon me, and none of them has that full knowledge of all the circumstances that is only open to His Majesty's Government.

For myself, looking back, I see nothing to regret nor any reason to suppose that another course would have been preferable. War today is so terrible in its effects on those who take part in it, no matter what the ultimate outcome may be, it brings so much loss and suffering even to those who stand aside and watch the combat from the ring that it ought never to be allowed to begin unless every practicable and honorable step has been taken to prevent it.

An Unwavering Policy.

He has often the view of this Government from the beginning, and the Munich agreement, though it is the most important illustration of its practical working, was only an incident in a consistent, unwavering policy of peace.

SOCIAL SECURITY FIGHT IS BREWING IN LEGISLATURE

Senator M'Reynolds to Offer Bills to Continue Federal Aid as Governor Requested.

OPPOSITION LIKELY FROM RURAL BLOC

If Need Is Disregarded in Pensions, $3,000,000 Additional Revenue Will Be Required.

By CURTIS A. BETTS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 28.—Introduction of the Social Security bills early in the week by Senator Allen McReynolds of Carthage, chairman of the Senate Social Security Committee, will initiate the first major fight of the present session of the Legislature. On it will depend the State's old age pension policy, whether to throw down the bars of eligibility and increase pensions with heavily increased State taxes or limit pensions to those in actual need and thus continue to receive Federal aid.

While no House bloc has yet been formed to attempt to return pension administration to local communities, to eliminate the policy of need from the eligibility requirements, and to materially increase tax rates, it is the expectation that an attempt will be made to line up rural House members in such a compact group.

It is not unlikely that the leadership will be taken by Representative O. B. Whitaker of Hickory County, who introduced a resolution in the House Tuesday to declare a State policy in favor of an extremely liberal Social Security program to be paid for by taxation of the surplus an individual had over "the amount required for a comfortable living." Whitaker's resolution was side-tracked by referring it to a committee.

Share-the-Wealth Sentiment.

There is no doubt that there is some share-the-wealth sentiment among rural members of the Legislature, though fainting has arisen to indicate its extent.

It is estimated that unless the law is changed to make definite that a person with substance obtained, is not entitled to a pension, that additional revenue amounting to at least $3,000,000 a month will be required when the pension age is reduced to 65, as it will be by the present Legislature in conformity with the constitutional amendment adopted last November.

While there undoubtedly will be prolonged debate over the policy to be adopted, it is the expectation of legislative leaders that when the law reaches its final form it will be in full accordance with Federal laws and regulations. There are some who believe the House may go on record in favor of a wide open program financed solely by the Senate is expected to block such a plan.

Sales Tax or Income Levy.

To obtain the additional revenue which would be required, there would be little place to turn except the sales tax or the income tax. A 6 per cent sales tax would be necessary to have an additional $3,000,000 available for pensions, which would not be acceptable to any rural bloc which may be formed as sales taxes are paid in the rural sections as well as in the cities and larger towns.

To obtain the money from the income tax would require changes in the law to produce at least six times as much money as is now obtained from that source, which would be a share-the-wealth program on an advanced scale.

There is some sentiment, which may prove stronger than it now appears, in support of the proposal by Senator William M. Quinn of Lewis County for a constitutional amendment to earmark the sales tax or other definite taxes for Social Security purposes. This contemplates a reduction in State aid to the public schools and a diversion of part of the school money to old age pensions, and if successful could take care of a part of the added expense of elimination of need as a basis of aid.

Gov. Lloyd C. Stark's special message to the Legislature Friday left little doubt in the minds of most legislators that further Federal aid would be withheld from Missouri unless need could be made the determining factor in granting aid, and unless the courts were deprived of the power to override the Social Security Commission in its decisions as to the eligibility of applicants, and the amount of pension to be granted in each case.

Senator McReynolds, who will introduce the bills to carry out the Governor's recommendations as to the necessary legislation for continuance of Federal aid, takes the position that the State must choose between a program financed greatly by the State including greatly increased taxation, and conformity with the Federal laws and regulations.

The opinion of legislative leaders generally appears to be that the final result of long legislative consideration will be that the State will adhere to the Federal program, and that there will be no increase in taxes.

TOWER GROVE PARK FUNDS 'INADEQUATE'

$25,000 Annual Allowance 'A Frugal Maintenance,' Board Tells Alderman.

Commissioners of Tower Grove Park appealed to the Board of Aldermen for additional funds yesterday, in a strongly worded report which termed the $25,000 appropriated annually by the city for the park "a frugal maintenance, an inadequate sum."

Total revenue for maintaining the park was $28,611, against expenses of $33,054, the annual report stated. The difference was paid from other funds available to the commission. Of the expenditures, $26,208 went for salaries and wages.

Improvements detailed in the report included the reconstruction of Prospect drive (3250 yards), resurfacing a mile bicycle track, renovation of fountain pond and enlarging the wading pool. Forty smoke from the thickly populated residential areas surrounding Tower Grove Park killed trees and accounted for greater maintenance demands than is the case in Carondelet and O'Fallon Parks, on which more money is spent per acre than is spent on Lafayette Park, the commissioners pointed out.

While stating they are fully aware of the city's present financial condition, the commissioners contend that "to keep Tower Grove Park anywhere near the ideal originally conceived requires more funds than have been available for some years." The additional allowance needed was not specified.

The commissioners are George T. Moore, Oscar E. Buder, W. S. Bedal and E. R. Kinsey.

SENATE PASSES RELIEF BILL AS CUT BY HOUSE

the existing system constituted discrimination against the South. Senator McCarran (Dem., Nev.) replied that Russell's proposal would "tear down the wage structure of this country." Senator O'Mahoney (Dem., Wyoming) declared that the inevitable effect of the amendment would be to reduce high wage rates instead of increasing lower ones.

Both sides agreed that the amendment would make no difference in the total pay received by a relief worker but would change the number of hours he would be required to work for his security wage.

Under existing law workers cannot be paid less than the prevailing hourly wage rate in their respective communities for the same kind of work. As a result, WPA workers in low-wage areas must work longer than those in localities where the hourly wage is higher in order to earn the same amount.

Russell told the Senate that WPA pay to unskilled labor ranged from 18 cents an hour in Tennessee to $1.02 in Illinois, while on professional and technical work the range was from 34 cents an hour in Alabama, Kentucky and Virginia to $3.03 in Pennsylvania.

Late in the day the Senate held "an inexorable safeguard" of a fair trial to be that "the trial of fact shall be an impartial tribunal."

It is complained that after William Reuther, a union leader, testified he had spent a year in Russia studying social and economic conditions, Ford counsel were not permitted to ask whether he had also studied Communist methods of governing.

FORD PLEA SAYS NLRB EXAMINER WAS UNFAIR

Asks Board to Suppress Evidence in River Rouge Plant Hearing.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Relying on a Supreme Court decision written by Justice Brandeis in the Kansas City Stockyards case, counsel for the Ford Motor Co. filed a motion before the National Labor Relations Board today asking it to suppress all evidence taken by Trial Examiner John T. Lindsay with regard to the River Rouge (Detroit) plant and to set aside the board's findings which were served on the company yesterday.

It is alleged that Lindsay conducted the hearing as a prosecutor rather than an impartial judge. There are listed 200 citations from the record, purporting to show "improper questioning of witnesses by the examiner, refusal to permit the company's lawyers to introduce evidence or to cross-examine witnesses and generally partisan and abusive conduct toward the company and toward witnesses testifying in its favor."

It is further declared that the examiner's conduct had the result of "frightening, intimidating and discouraging witnesses from giving testimony favorable to the company," while adverse witnesses were encouraged to "expand, exaggerate and embroider their testimony."

The motion recalls that Justice

TULSA, Ok., Jan. 28.—Halting a rousing third period Tulsa offensive in the nick of time, the St. Louis Flyers took a 3 to 2 American Hockey Association decision from the Oilers here tonight.

The victory increased the Flyers' lead in the league to four points as second-place Minneapolis lost tonight to Wichita, 2-1.

Lloyd (Bomber) Gross, slickly skating Tulsa wing, sparked a local rally mid-way in the final period that resulted in two tallies and came near counting more.

Players of both teams took frequent spills as Referee Stan Swain was carefree in his bell ringing. Only Bobby Burns, pugnacious Flyer wing, felt the sting of Swain's commands. Burns spent eight minutes in the penalty box on four minor penalties, the last two causing Johnny MacKinnon's league lead, plenty of grief.

But the Missouri boy had popped in two goals in the opening chapter and added another in the second, had too much of an advantage. Burns, Billy Hudson and Fido Purpur made the St. Louis scores.

Stealing the puck from Andy Bellemere both times, the determined Flyers scored two goals in the first period. The first was made by Burns after nine and one-half minutes, a few seconds after he had left the penalty box. Bellemere lazily crossed his own blue line and Bobby swiftly relieved him of the disc and beat Levine.

The second was made by Hudson in a similar manner. Pete Palanagi chased Billy for a bit and finally flung himself prone on the ice in a vain attempt to stop the shot. Pulse vs. Palanagi.

Several fights nearly broke out in the initial chapter. Palanagi and Pulse swapped choice remarks after the Tulsans had sidestepped a vicious body check, which left Pulse flat on the ice. Jack Riley and Bobby Burns were about to exchange punches but quick action by Referee Swain thwarted their gyrations and hustled Burns to the penalty box for tripping.

Neither sextet could capitalize on penalties. Bellemere left the game 15 seconds before the period ended for tripping Purpur and was in the cooler when the second canto began.

The Flyers couldn't seriously threaten during Bellemere's absence in the second stanza.

St. Louis finally knocked one past Levine after almost 19 minutes of play. Fido Purpur's blast from a sharp angle at 20 feet out did the trick and Hudson and Brennen man got assists.

Misled Opportunity.

Tulsa had a golden opportunity to count when Hudson was assessed a minor penalty for tripping. Burns was already in the penalty box along with Bellemere. But Nelson was equal to the cause, making several fine saves. Wakeford, Gross and Palanagi, Tulsa's dangerous offensive trio, peppered Goals Hub constantly during Hudson's forced rest.

Bomber Gross, Tulsa's sensational forward, outsmarted Gene Pulse both times to score one goal and assist in another as the local skaters went to work at the eight and one-half minute mark to tally twice in four minutes.

Cleverly manipulating the puck, Gross slipped behind the Flyer net, evaded Pulse's checking efforts and poked the puck past Nelson.

At 11:02 Gross again went behind the St. Louis net and after outsmarting Pulse for the second

OKLAHOMA STAR BREAKS BOSTON MARK IN '600'

Ken Clapp Captures 50-Yard Dash as Peacock Finishes Third; Cunningham Is Easy Victor.

By the Associated Press.
BOSTON, Jan. 28.—Harold Cagle, Oklahoma Baptist University's speedy middle-distance star, tonight convinced 13,000 track followers he was equally at home on cinders and boards by defeating a star-studded field in the 600-yard feature of the Proctor Memorial Games at the Boston Garden.

It was the first indoor start for this latest Western sensation, who jumped to fame by winning the Sugar Bowl quarter mile at New Orleans this month. After running third as the field straightened out from a staggered start, he jumped the pace-making Dick Gill, recent Boston College star, 20 yards from the tape, which he broke in 1:12.6, a new meet record.

Gill trailed by four feet and New York University's Jim Herbert, national indoor 600-meter champion and winner of this event for the past two years, finished third, seven yards behind Gill.

Glen Cunningham, who astounded the world by running a 4:04.4 mile the last time he visited New England, won his fifth consecutive E. of C. mile under wraps in 4:15.2.

The first final event was a 5.7-second world record, equaling performance of the 45-yard high hurdles by Allan Tolmich, of Detroit. Ken Clapp, of Brown, captured the 50-yard dash final in 5.4 seconds with Frank Zelmer, of Boston College, second, and Eulace Peacock, Philadelphia, Negro, third.

Another meet record was smashed in the Bishop Cheverus "1000," which resulted in an easy victory for John Borican, of Elberon, N. J., the national pentathlon titlist, who led from the start and had about five yards on Charlie Beetham, formerly of Ohio State and now of New York. The victor broke the tape in 1:26.

Don Lash, the Indiana State trooper who set the 5:55 indoor two-mile record in the 1937 Boston A. A. meet, won his second consecutive Larrivee event over that distance by overtaking Tommy Deckard, also of Indiana, a half-way from the tape and beating him by five yards in 9:08.8. The veteran Joe McCloskey of New York, who shared the early pace-making with Deckard, was a feeble third, 60 yards behind. Dave Albritton, Cleveland Negro, took high jump honors from Mel Walker of Toledo by making only four misses as he soared up to 6 feet 6 inches. Walker, the national indoor titlist, also cleared that height, but he missed six times while so doing.

BEARS TO TRY FOR SECOND VICTORY OVER MISSOURI

Washington University's basketball team will end a two-weeks rest when, tomorrow night at Columbia, the Bears meet the University of Missouri Tigers for the second and last time this season. When the teams met here last Dec. 22, the Bears won by a late rush, 47 to 43.

Both teams will be at top strength for the game. The Bears, with six victories in 11 games and a 3-2 record in Valley Conference competition, probably will have Bill Ferreky and Jack Warner at the forward positions with the high-scoring Desmond Lee at center and Bob Gerst and Dolf Uhlemeyer at the guards. Coach Helmick is just about convinced that this is his strongest starting combination though Butterly, Breahan, Giles and Record are almost sure to see service.

For Missouri, co-leaders with Iowa State in Big Six competition with three victories and one defeat, the most probable starters are Bill Harvey and Harlan Kortrey at the forwards. Blaine Currey at center and Hal Halsted and Capt. John Lohiger at the guards. Missouri has won eight of its 11 games this season. Reserves likely to get in the game are Tyson at center, Cooper and Watson at forward and Nash at one of the guard posts.

According to statistics, the Tigers will have the advantage on offense and defense. Missouri, scoring 462 points to 409 for the opposition, has averaged 43 points a game and has permitted 37.2. The Bears, counting 431 points and allowing opponents 420, have averaged 39.2 points as against 38.2 for their foes. Thus, Missouri's indicated advantage is 2.8 points on offense and one point on defense.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 28.—Capt. Jimmy Hull scored 23 points to night to take over the Big Ten scoring leadership and to send the Buckeyes into a tie with Minnesota for the Western Conference lead as Ohio State's cagers defeated Chicago, 52 to 25.

Hull's spurge gave him an edge of seven points over Dehner of Illinois, who has 74 in six contests. Hull has an average of 16.5 points per game.

The Buckeyes, worried at the start by Chicago's rangy zone defense, were forced into long shots in the early part of the contest. But Ohio's sharpshooter pulled away to a 23-12 edge at halftime.

The announced introduced him as Johnny J. Paycheck, "the fighting bellboy," and his opponent as one Max Steele of Ottumwa, Ia. No one seemed to be particularly interested.

But the fight was no sooner under way than veteran fans began to sit up and take notice. "Who is this boy?" they asked of each other. It was apparent that he had been around, that he was no novice in the art of fistfisticuffs, that he had something.

Paycheck weighed 172 pounds that night, his opponent 205. The little fellow simply riddled his big adversary with punches and scored a knockout in the second round.

One week later Paycheck met Red Muller in a preliminary and added another two-round knockout to his list. In another week the bellboy, who carried bags, ice water and whatever the patrons of Hotel Chamberlain demanded, to their rooms knocked Ray Mann of Sioux City kicking.

Real Name John Pacek.

Long before this, however, local newspaper men took an interest in Paycheck. They sensed that he was no ordinary bellboy, no ordinary pup. He was gracious when interviewed, but was vague about his past, seemed to forget facts.

But the writers persisted and in the end discovered that Paycheck in reality was John Pacek, a former Golden Gloves champion from Chicago. Prior to that he admitted he had been in numerous amateur fights and had participated in about half a dozen pro contests.

Those engaged in the research work continued. They communicated with friends in Chicago and learned that Pacek, although a light-heavyweight at the time, had won the Golden Gloves heavyweight championship in Chicago in 1933.

He had moved into the heavier class because his friend, Max Mark, now a fairly well known pro, was competing in the light-heavy division and the two did not care about meeting each other.

Later that spring Pacek, as a member of the Chicago team, won his bout in the InterCity meet with New York.

He continued fighting as an amateur until late in 1935, when he made what had been a sport his business. His manager took him to the Pacific Coast and in his ninth weekend he fought in the InterCity meet with New York.

It is necessary that the German club beat the Schumachers today or hold their peace until next season. There remains only one more week's play in the regular schedule and with a two-point lead before today's game, the Schumachers could clinch the group title with a tie score. In four previous meetings, the Schumachers won the first, 1-0; lost the second by the same score, won the third, 4-0, and dropped the decision three weeks ago, 1-0. Both teams have undergone some changes since their last meeting, most important in the Schumachers being the shifting of Bill Schuler, to inside right and the introduction of Jim Moran at center halfback and Jimmy Sheldon at center forward. The addition of Bill Corbett, forward, and Bert Orman in the backfield apparently helped the German club in recent games. This team as it takes the field today should play its best game of the season.

At Fairground Park's field No. 2, the Moloneys could clinch the group championship. All they have to do is defeat the Tait club. That's quite a job in view of the fact that the Taits haven't lost a game this season. They have won the Group Four title. Teams of both groups have played as a six-team league all season. In their own circle, the Moloneys have a three-point lead over the Miceli club, which has a bye today.

The big show on the north side is the doubleheader at Fairground Grounds Three. It opens with Parks Norge over St. Louis a week ago, opposing Andy Fredrick's club. If Parks Norge should win, it would take the Junior division championship; if not, a further replay would be scheduled. In the second game, the Plaza A. C. winners last week over the DeWitt club, will try to conclude the Intermediate division championship with another victory. The DeWitt club, with its regular center halfback star, "Bud" McCarthy back on the job, hopes to see service.

SPECIFY WINS
SAN FELIPE IN CLOSE FINISH

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28.—In a close finish with four horses almost nose-and-nose, A. A. Baron's Specify, an eligible for the Santa Anita Handicap, captured the $10,000 San Felipe Handicap of six furlongs at Santa Anita Park today in 1:10:15.

Movie Executive Louis B. Mayer's Main Man was second, closing so fast he probably would have won the race in another jump. Third was Alfred Vanderbilt's Airplane. Leading Article, owned by B. P. Woodson and co-holder of the track record with Rye Beach, came in fourth, pinched between other contenders in the last 50 yards where he looked like a winner.

A photograph of the finish was studied by the judges to determine the positions of the winners.

To $2 mutuel ticket holders, Specify's triumph was worth $11 to win, $5.80 to show and $4.20 to place. Main Man paid $8.20 and $5.80 and Airplane $3.60.

The famous Seabiscuit, having drawn a position in the middle of the field, was scratched last night. He worked out between races, however, and did seven furlongs in 1:25:45.

In the San Felipe, Speed to Spare set the early pace, but coming off the far turn, Airplane and Specie swapped him up.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 28.—Three important firsts at Hialeah Park today saw DeWitt Page's Maeriel Farm win its first race of the winter as Maeriel took the Miami Beach Handicap, first major turf course race of the meeting, with his stablemate, Go Home, third, and Inscolda, last year's two-year-old filly champion, took a beating in her first start of the year.

A crowd of about 15,000 poured $357,513 through the mutual machines to hit a new high mark for the track and exceed the handle for the corresponding day a year ago by $18,222.

The Connecticut sportsman's combination of Maeriel and Go Home was held at $26.60 for each $2 win ticket. Mrs. E. F. Whitaker's Sickle T., a slight favorite, finished fourth behind Go Home, and Wise Prince, which won the stake on the Main Course last year, was fifth.

Dropping back soon after the start, Maeriel with Joe Renick up, avoided interference during the scramble for places, then worked slowly up to slip through on the inside rounding the last turn and take the lead at the head of the stretch. Francesco, the second favorite, representing the Derby Dan farm of John Galbreath, was in trouble early in the race and just failed to overhaul Maeriel in the stretch drive.

In the three-way struggle at the finish, which began when Don Meads brought Francesco up on the outside while Go Home came up from last place, Maeriel lasted to win by a head while Go Home was only a half-length behind.

BUILDING SPURT PUTS 1938 AHEAD OF 1937

Survey Shows Construction Lagged First 9 Months—Total $3,472,457,000.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Building throughout the country increased during the last quarter of 1938 to finish a full 10 per cent ahead of 1937 and 15 per cent ahead of 1936, a nationwide survey disclosed today.

The National Association of Building Trade Employers, which conducted the survey, said it was the consensus of building authorities that construction this year would exceed four billion dollars, the best in 10 years.

Building in 44 states reporting to the survey, said Ed M. Craig, executive secretary, had a dollar value last year of $3,472,457,000, compared with $3,118,299,000 in 1937 and $2,128,739,000 in 1936. The industry had stepped forward after a period of stagnation after the stock market crash that found it still lagging behind 1937 at the end of the third quarter.

Building during the first nine months last year totaled $2,345,051,000, compared with $2,512,919,945 in the corresponding 1937 period.

In 44 major cities building permits were issued last year for construction valued at $807,411,620, compared with $818,108,983 for 1937 and $677,867,457 for 1936.

New York led all cities with a total for the year of $355,000,000. Los Angeles was second with $67,826,694 and Detroit third with $51,430,371. Other leaders included: Houston, $25,044,053; Washington, $24,104,791; San Francisco, $23,223,231; Chicago, $21,258,299; Cleveland, $18,310,782.

The survey points out that the Los Angeles total includes Federal, State and city public projects, whereas the Chicago figure does not include public projects.

Construction totals reported 29,478 houses erected, with a dollar value of $180,284,574, compared with 29,436 homes in 1937 valued at $136,465,176. Los Angeles led in the number and value of homes built last year with $461,000 at $30,823,463. Detroit was second with $652,000 at $34,342,178 and Houston third with 3677 valued at $13,579,435.

Home building in this country reached its peak in 1925, when 752,000 dwellings were erected. Between the years 1922 and 1928, an average of 625,000 housing units were built annually. During the next several years 500,000 homes must be constructed annually, the survey said, to erase the shortage caused by building stagnation of the past few years.

REALTY EXCHANGE 9-1 AGAINST HOUSING PLAN

$5 or under, compared to 3 per cent the year before.

Expects Increase in Taxes.

"The Real Estate Exchange contends also that all of these housing projects, in the long run, must cost privately owned property a tremendous amount in additional taxes. All such projects are tax exempt. They do pay a certain amount to the cities in lieu of taxes, which is generally 3 per cent of the total shelter rent they receive and which is not figured on the payment for gas, heat, light, refrigerator, etc., furnished in these projects. This payment in lieu of taxes is generally about 10 per cent of what a similar project, privately owned, would pay.

Milwaukee reports that a project which is privately owned, would pay in taxes $80,000 per year, pays nothing. In Oklahoma City project that otherwise would pay $300,000 pays only for utilities used at a wholesale rate. This difference must be made up somehow and it is feared that privately owned real estate will bear the full burden."

The mortgage loan department, a report prepared by a committee of the chamber's construction industry conference, referred to the Federal Public Works, housing and defense programs, and added: "A sudden upswing of activity on so many fronts might easily bring about building cost increases at a rate so rapid as to discourage further private building, unless good business judgment and cooperation are exercised by the building material supply people and building labor. It would be unfortunate for the industry to lose its present sales argument of moderate costs."

Building during the first nine months last year totaled $2,345,051,000, compared with $2,512,919,945 in the corresponding 1937 period.

In 44 major cities building permits were issued last year for construction valued at $807,411,620, compared with $818,108,983 for 1937 and $677,867,457 for 1936.

New York led all cities with a total for the year of $355,000,000. Los Angeles was second with $67,826,694 and Detroit third with $51,430,371. Other leaders included: Houston, $25,044,053; Washington, $24,104,791; San Francisco, $23,223,231; Chicago, $21,258,299; Cleveland, $18,310,782.

The survey points out that the Los Angeles total includes Federal, State and city public projects, whereas the Chicago figure does not include public projects.

Construction totals reported 29,478 houses erected, with a dollar value of $180,284,574, compared with 29,436 homes in 1937 valued at $136,465,176. Los Angeles led in the number and value of homes built last year with $461,000 at $30,823,463. Detroit was second with $652,000 at $34,342,178 and Houston third with 3677 valued at $13,579,435.

Home building in this country reached its peak in 1925, when 752,000 dwellings were erected. Between the years 1922 and 1928, an average of 625,000 housing units were built annually. During the next several years 500,000 homes must be constructed annually, the survey said, to erase the shortage caused by building stagnation of the past few years.

Expects Increase in Taxes.

"The Real Estate Exchange contends also that all of these housing projects, in the long run, must cost privately owned property a tremendous amount in additional taxes. All such projects are tax exempt. They do pay a certain amount to the cities in lieu of taxes, which is generally 3 per cent of the total shelter rent they receive and which is not figured on the payment for gas, heat, light, refrigerator, etc., furnished in these projects. This payment in lieu of taxes is generally about 10 per cent of what a similar project, privately owned, would pay.

Milwaukee reports that a project which is privately owned, would pay in taxes $80,000 per year, pays nothing. In Oklahoma City project that otherwise would pay $300,000 pays only for utilities used at a wholesale rate. This difference must be made up somehow and it is feared that privately owned real estate will bear the full burden."

Hillyer for Columbia Building and Loan Association; 1443 Kingsland avenue, bungalow, purchased by Walter L. and Delora Roberts from Perry E.

FRANCISCUS-MAGINN ENLARGES QUARTERS AND ADDS TO FORCE

Franciscus-Maginn, Inc., has enlarged and modernized its offices, occupying a wing on the second floor of the Wainwright Building at Seventh and Chestnut streets, made necessary by increased business. New members of the organization include Charles Lewis, William B. Graham, Victor H. Koerner and August Chouteau Jr.

The mortgage loan department, a report prepared by a committee of the chamber's construction industry conference, referred to the Federal Public Works, housing and defense programs, and added: "A sudden upswing of activity on so many fronts might easily bring about building cost increases at a rate so rapid as to discourage further private building, unless good business judgment and cooperation are exercised by the building material supply people and building labor. It would be unfortunate for the industry to lose its present sales argument of moderate costs."

Survey Shows Construction Lagged First 9 Months—Total $3,472,457,000.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Building throughout the country increased during the last quarter of 1938 to finish a full 10 per cent ahead of 1937 and 15 per cent ahead of 1936, a nationwide survey disclosed today.

The National Association of Building Trade Employers, which conducted the survey, said it was the consensus of building authorities that construction this year would exceed four billion dollars, the best in 10 years.

Building in 44 states reporting to the survey, said Ed M. Craig, executive secretary, had a dollar value last year of $3,472,457,000, compared with $3,118,299,000 in 1937 and $2,128,739,000 in 1936. The industry had stepped forward after a period of stagnation after the stock market crash that found it still lagging behind 1937 at the end of the third quarter.

SUBURBAN PROPERTY FOR SALE

A Development of Federer Realty Co.Why buy a home in WINTER?

BECAUSE any home that meets your requirements and looks good to you today will be more appealing and attractive during the more enjoyable months of the year when the trees and flowers are in bloom, the lawns are green and the smoke and dirt of the winter is gone. Opportunities right now are much better. Homes erected in 1939 will cost much more because of the increase in labor and building materials.

ONE GIRL'S WASTED YEARS

By ELSIE ROBINSON

B RUSSELL sprouts . . . olives . . . celery . . . veal chops—it was a nuisance, bread them—particularly if you'd been held late at the office—but Ed didn't like them any other way. Oh, well—she peered wearily at the shopping list through smudged glasses.

French bread . . . garlic—She loathed garlic, but Ed was crazy about French bread fixed that way—split, buttered, rubbed with garlic and toasted—

An alligator pear, perhaps . . . even though they were terribly expensive. But Ed liked—

Oh, darn Ed!

A horror swept her . . . perhaps she was going to cry . . . right out here . . . where everyone could see! But she couldn't help it if she did. She was so tired . . . as sick and tired of doing this week after week, year after year—Suppose . . . suppose, just for once . . . that Mr. Edward J. Hilton didn't find his regular Thursday dinner exactly to his extremely pernickety taste? Well—what of it? Why should she worry? She gasped inwardly at the very audacity of the idea . . . then, fascinated by the thought of such freedom, her mind rushed perilously on. Five years of fixing dinners to fit Ed Hilton's taste . . . just because she'd been dumb enough to let the thing get started when she was a green kid of 19, alone in the city.

IT HAD BEEN heavenly then—at the first. All week she'd count on it . . . rushing out at noon, missing her lunch to buy some little surprise, some new delicacy . . . racing home from the office.

Then the same old bell . . . the same old casual kiss and box of candy . . . the same endless recounting of how-i-told-the-boss-where-to-head-in.

All for what . . . for what? She bit her lips against the words that struggled for release. Five years feeding a man . . . fussing over a man . . . ministering to his moods . . . denying herself to everyone else. And what did she, Ellen Louise Allison, get out of it? What would she ever get out of it?

Marriage? Of course she had counted on that at first. But she'd stopped kidding herself long since. And settled down to—this. A movie once or twice a month. An occasional Sunday drive—although he spent most Sundays playing golf. A box of handkerchiefs at Christmas. Five years of faithful drudgery for that?

Why did she . . . why did any single girl with a good job . . . waste her life like that? A man wouldn't. No man on earth would slave and sacrifice and stand things, the way girls did.

OH, SHE KNEW she wasn't any great beauty. It was ages since she'd bought a decent dress—but perhaps—for a long moment she stood perfectly still. Her eyes widened, darkened. Dark splotches sprang like worms along the soft whiteness of her neck. Abruptly she fumbled for her hand mirror—stood staring—her upper lip wrinkling with disgust. There was that nice little beauty operator who lived in the next apartment. She'd been teasing her for weeks—And there was that new man in the promotion department . . . big, quiet friendly fellow. He'd wanted to date her twice, now, but she'd turned him down for—Ed. Ed! "Anything you want, ma'am!" a small clerk inquired. "Yes—plenty!" snapped Ellen Louise Allison. "And what's more, I'm going to get it!" . . . and stalked toward the nearest phone.

THE WOODS are full of them—the faithful Ellens—wasting their youth and romantic dreams on some man to whom they are merely a convenient habit. Years pass. Golden hairs turn gray—smiles grow grim—and romance fades away . . . but still they drudge on their dreary round.

Then some morning—like's not—they wake to find that their hero has married some peevish little puff-ball who kicks him around—while he grins and asks for more! And who has Ellen to thank but herself?

Designing Women

By Margaretta Byers and Consuelo Kamholz

CHAPTER 33.

T OWN, 5 to 7 clothes: the first and often the only change in a busy woman's day comes at cocktail time. Her cocktail costume may be street or ankle-length.

The street length has become extremely popular and is considerably smarter because an evening wrap would be silly with or tailored dresses.

Here is where the vogue for fur capes is so very apropos.

Because fur capes can be used for the street and over ankle-length cocktail frocks, too, if you must wear them.

In the final analysis they're actually economical.

When it gets too cold for a fur cape, you switch to your fur coat.

Think about this when you buy a fur coat and you'll see the advantage of getting it in a three-quarter length so when it goes out with an ankle-length cocktail costume it won't broadcast the fact that you wear it in the daytime.

—o—o—

RESTAURANT DINING: The best solution for dining at a fairly formal restaurant if you haven't come on from cocktails is a dinner suit or ensemble or some rich fabric with an almost floor length skirt and a longish wrap.

Throwing the coat over the back of your chair will reveal a brilliant jacket or bodice.

Here you have the perfect compromise between the formality required in the evening and the discretion required in public. (This outfit means "black tie" for your escort).

Of course, the supper clubs expect you to come in full evening regalia.

—o—o—

DINING WITH FRIENDS: When you can't pin your hostess down to saying definitely "We are dressing" those cocktail jackets come in handy again, over decollete evening dresses.

You can peek at the guests as you sweep into the dressing room and decide then and there whether to take your jacket or leave it.

Again you may wear your fur cape or coat.

—o—o—

WHAT TO WEAR AT YOUR OWN PARTY: If you give a dress, you are supposed to dress more formally than your guests.

The theory is they will come in street clothes, probably suits or tailored dresses.

While you, being at home, should be discovered in an afternoon frock.

The assumption is, you have not dressed up for your own party.

You simply are wearing your usual afternoon at-home costume.

For that reason, a lot of women nowadays are receiving in hostess gowns or housecoats.

When you give a dinner or an evening party; when guests come "dressed," you are supposed to dress less formally than your guests to displease your own party.

WHAT TO WEAR AT SOMEONE ELSE'S PARTY: Sometimes your hostess gives you a clew by saying "black tie" or "white tie."

Black tie means semi-formality; dinner dresses with covered decolletages or dinner suits, the sort of thing suggested for restaurant dining, though here a hat is not obligatory.

When she says "white tie," you go the limit of formality.

When she gives you no clew, underdress rather than over-dress. You always will be more comfortable.

—o—o—

ENVOI: It all adds up to what Emerson said: "Manners are not idle, they are the result of thought."

Costumes, too, are the result of taking thought to taste, and there's no accounting for taste except on one count. Everybody agrees that taste is a sense of the fitness of things. That is your only limitation.

If you live up to that, you can express your own individual taste as much as you like—the more the better, because that is what makes you interesting.

Tomorrow: Ensemble.

THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

ALL LIFE IS GRIST FOR HER MILL

Adela Rogers St. Johns, the Writer, Gathers Material Out of Every Possible Situation.

By Virginia Irwin

DELA ROGERS ST. JOHNS is like a martini. Better make it a flock of martinis. Because if you drink in Adela's conversation long enough, this slightly undecorated old world will begin to look decidedly different. She makes something out of everything, from eating a hamster in a roadhouse to changing her grandchild's diapers. She makes stories out of the same things, too. That's why she's one of the most prolific of popular authors.

Adela Rogers St. Johns really wanted to be a lawyer. Her father wanted her to be an actress. Instead she went into the newspaper business—years ago.

"I had to get into something that had wheels, big wheels that I could stick my fingers into," Adela told me the other day. And having started out with a curiosity that made her want to poke her digits in the cogs, Adela has held on to it. Her new novel "Field of Honor" is the tangible result of her curiosity about aviation; her "Capital Close-Ups" series in Cosmopolitan the proof that she stuck her nose pretty deeply into the behind-the-scenes Washington pudding; her late series in the Post-Dispatch on the super-crook, "The Amazing Mr. Coster," evidence that she had to get through her sieve.

Today Adela is trying to devote practically all of her time to fiction, but her reputation as a crack reporter usually lands her an assignment when there's some big story under way. Maybe you remember her stuff on the Lindbergh kidnaping and the Hauptmann trial, the Costello trial, and her radio report on the Hindenburg disaster.

FEATURES OF GENERAL INTEREST

IS HIGHER EDUCATION FALLING DOWN?

"The Longer Average Student Goes to School the Less He Is Apt to Improve in Knowledge."

By Marguerite Martyn

FREQUENTLY, I fear that I will give readers the impression that I think all fashion in decorating originates in New York and that no good can come out of our local talent. Well, of course there is no question but that New York, by the very nature of things is the leading factor in trends of decorating all over the country, although Hollywood and the movies are having more and more of a voice in things decorative. So, it is a great pleasure to me to tell of two St. Louis architects who are making a stir in the outside world. Doubly interesting is the fact that these two men started out together in this field and both are following along similar lines the decorative and architectural theories they developed as young men when they were practicing here in St. Louis.

Victor Proetz is now connected with Mrs. Joshua Corden in the decorating business in New York. Recently this shop had a very interesting showing of furniture designed by him. This furniture is mainly inspired by the classic periods such as Empire, Regency and Biedermeier but in a modernized manner. His favorite materials are rosewood dyed a deep brown-black, black lacquer and imitation tortoise shell, as well as blond English sycamore. Decorative treatments are frequently inlays of pewter, brass or a contrasting wood or paneled in leather, tooled in gold.

Ralph Hall, the other member of the old firm of Hall & Proetz, has just departed for England where he has been commissioned to do a country house for Mrs. Tom Berlington, the former Ouliette Queen of St. Louis. However, he has not given up his local office and it is nice to know that he will be back to do some of the interesting and unusual houses that have added so much to the St. Louis landscape.

I cannot leave the subject of St. Louis architects who are doing interesting things away from this city without mention of Charles Farnes, who is now studying with the sculptor, Carl Miles, at Cranbrook. In addition to the interesting ceramic and designing work that he is doing there, he is also working with Mr. Miles on the Aloe Memorial Plaza.

PINE PANELING adds interest almost to any room but it is particularly lovely when it has the fine old patina obtained by age and much waxing. Now, however, a manufacturer has perfected a one-coat treatment for pine walls which reproduces the color, texture, and finish of genuine old pine. Incidentally, those who have pine-paneled walls have probably found that change in weather conditions causes the wood to expand and contract to such an extent that at times there are big cracks between the boards. When this occurs is a good time to take one of the small attachment of the vacuum cleaner and run it over the walls to get out much of the dust that is bound to accumulate.

As any follower of this column knows, unusual occasional tables are something of a passion with us. We are particularly interested in the man-o'-oil and fascinating tables, once put to other uses, which are now used as plant tables. Many oil-washstands, especially of the corner variety, are ideal for such uses as old wig stands, tier tables, and even shaving stands. Very new and practical as well as smart are the tremendous cocktail tables which are now being shown. They are so big that they will hold several trays of hors d'oeuvres or all the paraphernalia of a light Sunday night supper. They are particularly nice for apartment or hotel dwellers without regular dining rooms.

WITH THE TREND toward more feminine effects in such rooms as bedrooms and dressing rooms, interest is being shown in dressmaker details. Smocking is being introduced once again for curtains, bedsprads and lamp shades while sheer curtains of net, silk, or organdie are either being accented pleated or shirred. Some drapery fabrics now come woven with tassels hanging from the material to give that hand-made look while frequently ribbon is run through heading at the edge of sheer curtains to give a delicate feminine effect.

Something is at last being done about radio to make it an acceptable decorative feature in any room. Many people have tucked their radios away behind doors or done without them altogether rather than put up with the frequently badly designed models. However, now it is possible not only to get a radio in a decently designed piece of furniture which will serve as an end table but also to get a radio-victrola combination in a pair of cabinets suited to serve at either end of a couch. And really news and worth watching for is the piano which also has radio and victrola attachments concealed within it so that you have all three musical instruments combined in one piece of furniture, thus simplifying the decorating problem.

Always delightful to me has been the cast iron pattern of the balconies in the French Quarter in New Orleans. It is now possible to buy fragments of this lady patterned ironwork made up into foot-scrappers, book-ends, hanging brackets and such.

"COLLEGES, LIKE PRISONS, HAVE DEALT WITH THEIR INMATES LARGELY ON THE BASIS OF A REQUIRED SENTENCE TO BE SERVED."

THE longer he goes to school, the less the average student is apt to improve in knowledge, it would seem from intelligence tests applied in a study conducted by the Carnegie Foundation for the advancement of teaching. In one representative group of 10 liberal arts colleges selected for the tests, juniors were found outranking seniors in academic ability, sophomores outranking juniors and freshmen averaging higher than any other class.

As compared to high school seniors, says the report of the study which is summarized in a pamphlet, "How Good Are Our Colleges?" issued by the Public Affairs Committee of New York City, "about one-fourth of the college seniors showed less academic ability than the average student who left high school to go to work."

It was no superficial study but one extending over 10 years, with 45,000 students in high schools and colleges of Pennsylvania used successively as guinea pigs. The idea is advanced that the same conditions presumably obtain in all the states, the students in Pennsylvania being no duller or brighter than elsewhere.

Other rather shocking disclosures of the report are that the intelligence scores of students entering teachers' colleges were slightly below those of high school graduates going into machine trades. That the colleges are getting only about half the brightest high school graduates. That intelligence test averages for college men exceed those of college women. That older students average lower scores on tests of intelligence and general knowledge than younger ones in the same class.

All these conclusions are reasoned out and accounted for logically after we have accepted the word of the surveyors that their instruments of measuring knowledge are reliable.

The authors of the survey insist that with questionnaires containing some 2000 questions covering such subjects as vocabulary, literature, general science, fine arts, history and social studies each question calling for a definite right or wrong answer, an instrument has been formulated that accurately measures what a student has learned and remembered. In those subjects, that the subjects pretty well cover the field of general knowledge and culture, that the instrument is proof against teachers' bias and that it replaces opinion with dependable facts.

The cultural lag in college is due, it is contended, to the fact that "colleges, like prisons, have dealt with their inmates largely on the basis of a required sentence to be served." In lieu of a mastery of the arts, the college demands merely semester course credit. Each credit earned requires so many hours spent in assigned classrooms, libraries and laboratories. There are, of course, certain things required to "pass" the courses, but over and above those the only measure of education commonly used is time.

The reason college men rate higher than college women called for special explanation. In all subjects men do not excel. In mathematics men led by a large margin, also in natural sciences. In history and social science men surpassed women. There was not much difference in the vocabulary test. But women excelled in literature and fine arts. The conclusion is that boys are encouraged by a variety of influences, in and out of school, to use the materials of mathematics and sciences, while girls, with their emotional makeup, are more often urged toward literature, the arts and human relations.

—o—o—

THAT older students quite generally rate lower than younger ones on tests of intelligence and general knowledge, is accounted for by the fact that bright students generally get into college younger than the average and make better records all the way along.

One of the facts which most disturbed the authors of the survey was the consistently mediocre performance of prospective teachers, teachers' college entrants averaging lower than high school seniors headed for jobs in the machine trades.

"We must remember," it is pointed out, "that these are only average students going to teachers' colleges as well as the best 300 seniors students entering other types of year 40, 60 freshmen must serve as a basis for graduation," the pamphlet suggests.

"In a system like that there would be real incentive for study. One could graduate as soon as he had shown mastery of the knowledge. The bright students would finish the course quickly, and be free to continue graduate courses or enter occupations."

Colleges are shown to differ widely in the capacity of their students.

In one extreme case all the students in the sophomore class of one college ranked lower in intelligence test than the dullest sophomore in another college. "So what?" again asks the pamphlet, "does the same degree from such widely different institutions mean?"

A general conclusion of "How Good Are Our Colleges?" is that a "few great things are wrong with them." "It means," answer the authors, "in those 10 colleges where that it is about twice as expensive one-third of the freshmen scored in time (and probably in money) higher than half the seniors, there to go to the less efficient institutions."

"Suppose the colleges were to shift from time serving to knowledge as a basis for graduation," the pamphlet suggests.

"In a system like that there would be real incentive for study. One could graduate as soon as he had shown mastery of the knowledge. The bright students would finish the course quickly, and be free to continue graduate courses or enter occupations."

—o—o—

IT is determined by the questionnaires that the reason only half the brightest high school graduates go on to college is an economic one. "The colleges get students with more money and less brains."

Everybody should be concerned about what is going on in the schools. It is argued, "We all pay the bills. Students pay on an average only about one-third of the costs of higher education. One-third is paid through local, state and Federal grants. Even the third of college costs which comes from gifts and endowments is a matter of general concern, for public policies influence the accumulation of wealth. If the colleges are filled with students who do not benefit, then public money is being wasted."

"On the other hand," it is maintained, "if there are young men and women now working in offices and factories who cannot afford to go to college, but who might, with college training, become outstanding leaders, there also we are losing enormously. Who can estimate what it might be worth to have additional great scientists, talented writers, superior physicians or master teachers in the next generation?"

We now provide free tuition, free board and room and laundry for feeble-minded and delinquent young people. Would it not be wise to extend similar opportunity to young people with first rate minds?

It is clearly unfortunate that half of our talented students with real ability are not now getting a chance to go to college. We do not have really free education in the United States until young people of ability can carry on their studies without handicap of economic resources.

"This seems to point to subsidies," the pamphlet adds, "and they should be sufficient to cover not only tuition, but living expenses, and perhaps, in some cases aid to dependents, so the student will not have to drop his education to go to work until he is fully prepared for the highest service he can render."

"America loses quite as much as the youth himself suffers when a potential scientist, artist, professional man or civic leader must work at a commonplace job, far below the level of his possible contribution."

UNDER PIE CRUST

One-half cup flour.

One-half cup salt.

One-fourth cup shortening.

Cold water (about two table-spoons).

BAKED DUCKLING

The ducklings weigh about two and one-half pounds. Have them cut in four pieces. Rub entire surface with softened butter, place on broiler rack, skin side up and cook under moderately slow heat until nicely browned. Baste occasionally pie plate.

—o—o—

ROAST DUCK, ARMENONVILLE

Have duck drawn. Remove all pin feathers, singe and wash thoroughly. Cook enough white potatoes to yield about one quart when mashed.

Mash potatoes and season with salt, pepper and one tablespoon of finely chopped parsley. Whip all together, adding a tablespoon of butter and two egg yolks which have been beaten with three tablespoons of cream. Add a little more cream if necessary to obtain a light, fluffy mixture. Stuff duck with mashed potatoes, sew skin together, tie legs and wings close to body, dredge lightly with salt and flour and place in a hot oven (450 degrees) for 30 minutes. Then reduce heat to moderate and finish roasting, allowing 20 minutes to the pound. Baste every 10 minutes during baking. Serve garnished with skewered fruit.

—o—o—

BAKED SKWERED FRUIT

Select prunes and apricots of the same size. Put to soak in cold water in separate pans about six hours in advance of the dinner, as this will soften them sufficiently for the oven cooking. Drain off water and dry thoroughly. Remove pits from prunes. Fill skewers alternating with prunes and apricots. Roll each skewer in melted butter and then in brown sugar. Place in a buttered baking pan and cook in moderate oven with the duck about 15 minutes, turning once in the cooking. Remove from the oven; prick fruit with additional brown sugar, place under broiler flame until glazed and remove immediately.

If you are fond of duck and want something especially nice for your dinner try ducklings for a change.

Reviews OF NEW MOVIES

By Colvin McPherson

HOLLYWOOD has had long experience in the art of making thrillers and in such works as "G-Men," "Ceiling Zero" and "Test Pilot" has put out some excellent examples. But for really bringing danger home to an audience, so that it even forgets to bite its finger-nails, a British director takes the honors. This is Alfred Hitchcock and his latest, "The Lady Vanishes," at the Ambassador, isn't the best device yet offered for scaring rational human beings out of their wits, more suspenseful efforts ought to be suppressed, as a matter of public safety.

The plot of "The Lady Vanishes" should not be related, except so far as the title indicates what the film is about. The central situation is the disappearance of a harmless-looking little English governess on a crack train, in some high-bride part of Europe. A young woman traveling on the train tries to find the governess and runs into a nightmare of dangers. All in broad daylight, all with dozens of other passengers about.

Moviegoers who tire of the "boogie-boogie" class of horrors from Hollywood, and realize that such frights are for children, may ask themselves occasionally just what would frighten them. In "The Lady Vanishes," Hitchcock and the various authors connected with the work have hit upon the torment—to make the main character doubt her senses.

When Margaret Lockwood, as the girl investigator, attempts to find what has happened to the governess, played by Dame May Whitty, she meets with no co-operation, only conspiracy, only denial there ever was such a person. To Miss Lockwood's credit, which has already resulted in a Hollywood contract, it should be said that she fully projects the embarrassment, confusion and resolution which would represent the inner feelings of a person in such a situation. She is logical.

The entire film is logical and causal, in an easy sort of way that is deceiving and in this lies much of director's skill. For fully 15 minutes, "The Lady Vanishes" is no more baleful or ominous than Sonja Henie's latest peasant of Alice-in-Wonderland. The very fact that nothing happens makes everything suspect.

The disappearance of Miss Whitty is itself such a slight matter that it does not become appalling until contradicted. After that, the unceasing motion of the train, the impulsive stances of various travelers become maddening. When, at last, the danger comes out in the open, it brings something of relief.

With Miss Lockwood's and Miss Whitty's are at least a half dozen other very penetrating portrayals, by Paul Lukas, Michael Redgrave, Basil Radford, Naughton Wayne and other players unknown to American audiences. Only one slight example of inferiority in production, a poor use of model scenery in the opening shots of the film, detracts from its general superiority.

The unpredictable Charles Laughton, whose absences from the screen always rob it of much of its vitality, turns up again in "The Beachcomber," also at the Ambassador. His role, that of the derelict Ginger Ted of W. Somers' Maugham's story, "Vessel of Wrath," is a virtuous one.

Laurel, drunken, unshaven and raged, Ginger Ted is the greatest moral problem on a little Dutch island possession in the East Indies. The local missionary, Martha Jones, raises him and cry against him and has him thrown in jail, but all to no avail. The Dutch controllor enjoys Ted and dislikes the missionaries and in the outcome, even Miss Jones finds she loves the derelict. It is the story of Sadie Thompson, with the parts reversed, and some amendments by the author of the screen play.

then as a thick-tongued Russian blonde, then as an honest woman realizing her love for an ordinary man, Miss Shearer offers widely separated examples of her versatility.

Gable has learned to do a few dances steps but apart from that, plays only Clark Gable. The crabbish ignorance of Harry Van, the frank worldliness, the typically Yankee skepticism which made Alfred Lunt's portrait so sharp and keen is all that is left.

Idiot's Delight. R

OBERT SHERWOOD'S play, "Idiot's Delight," which captured some attention and a Pulitzer prize a few years ago by describing a possible war between Italy and France and by presenting Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne as a pair of reunited hotel acquaintances, has been translated to the screen and appears at Loew's.

To be as inoffensive as possible, the war is now just a war between a couple of countries somewhere in Europe, the natives all speak Esperanto, the somewhat doubtful association of Harry Van, the vaudeville hooper, and Irene, the bogus Russian Countess, is glorified by blossoming into true love, rather than instinctive animal loyalty. Clark Gable plays Harry Van, and Lunt, Norma Shearer is Irene, the Fontanne character.

All in all, it is a good show, with virtues that are distinctly its own. Although it rants less about war, although there are fewer debates in the hotel lounge about science, mankind and the moron sport of militarism, the picture gives a shocking visual impression of the "courage of bombing and is more terrifying than in its original form.

It spends a half hour demolishing Gable from the last war, introducing him to Miss Shearer, then an acrobat, in Omaha, and bringing the two to his hotel room. The screen play is by Robert E. Sherwood, so good evidence exists that it is what the original author would want it to be, within the limits set by Mr. Hayes, Mr. Breen, et al.

The No. 1 surprise is Miss Shearer's performance. First as a show-girl with delusions of grandeur, among screen melodramas,

PRIZE IRISH DRAMA TO THE AMERICAN

Sir Cedric Hardwicke Plays First Time in City in "Shadow and Substance."

ONE of the more notable dramas of the American Theater's season begins its engagement tomorrow night. This is Paul Vincent Carroll's "Shadow and Substance," which the New York Critics' Circle last season selected as the outstanding play from abroad. The star of the production, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, also received the Drama League medal on his performance.

"Shadow and Substance" came to Broadway from the famous Abbey Theater of Dublin, Ireland, where it was first presented in 1934. Several reviewers, having read the play before it opened in New York, hailed it as a master work and the printed version had gone into its fourth edition before the production was a month old.

The setting is in Ireland and the main character the Very Rev. Thomas Canon Skerritt, an Irish churchman who has been educated in Spain. Inspired by the personality of Jonathan Swift, famous satirist and dean of St. Patrick's, according to the author's admission, the Canon is inclined to regard religion through the eyes of a modern scholar, and as a result, is frequently at variance with his parishioners, who are wrought up emotionally by an atheistic book written by the local schoolmaster.

The Canon has also another problem. His serving girl, Brigid, inside she has visions of St. Brigid and that the Saint talks to her. All the Canon's admonitions have no effect and in the climax of the drama, while the villagers set out to stone the teacher and Brigid hastens to protect him, the Canon has evidence that perhaps he has gone too far in trying to reason out religion.

Hardwicke, youngest British actor ever to be knighted for his contribution to the theater, is making his first American stage tour, although he is already known for his solo performances in "Les Misérables," "Green Light," "Nine Days a Queen," "Becky Sharp" and "Neil Gwynn." On the New York stage, he has also appeared in "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse" and Saturday nights.

Shirtwaist Frocks

Shirtwaist frocks are losing much of their severity now that the fashion for very feminine frills has hit a new high mark. Many of the newest frocks on display in the shops start out with very tailored emphasis at the neckline but become decidedly frivolous in the cut of a skirt or the addition of trimming. A shirt-stud type of blouse, for example, will be allied with a very bouffant skirt. Addition of lace ruffles, drawstring details, smocked pockets and very elaborate smashes are other evidences that trimness and simplicity have rivals in the assets of practical daytime apparel.

Homemade Breadcrumbs

Take all leftover slices of bread and heat slowly in the oven until very crisp. Cool and roll finely with a rolling pin. You will have a supply of bread crumbs for dipping fish and croquettes that will last for a long time. Store in a tightly covered glass jar.

As an added treat, spread cheese over pie crusts during last 10 minutes of baking.

To Be May Bride

—Julie Pierrot photograph.
MISS BLOSSOM APPLE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis T. Apple of Huntleigh Village, whose engagement to R. Joyce Portney was announced recently. The bridegroom-to-be is the son of Mrs. Rebecca Portney. The wedding will take place in May.

DURING the few weeks between the end of the formal debutante season and the beginning of the Lenten period, Feb. 22, entertaining in St. Louis is largely informal. Wedding parties occupy prominent places on the social calendar. Members of the wedding party of Miss Dorothy Lee Culver and Frank Edmund Pelton Jr., who are to be married Saturday afternoon, left early yesterday afternoon to spend the weekend at Glimpses of Glory, the country place of Park G. Hammarskjold. They will return this afternoon to be guests of Miss Laura Hale Rand at a cocktail party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chambless Rand, 7109 Delmar boulevard. Parties will be given each day this week for Miss Culver, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin R. Culver Jr., 35 Brentmoor Park, and her fiance.

Many out-of-town guests will come to St. Louis for the ceremony, which will take place at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon at the Culver home. Arriving today will be Mrs. C. L. Hagerman, Birmingham, Mich. Mrs. Culver's mother, Mrs. Henry B. Heywood, and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery S. Lewis and their daughter, Miss Adeline Lewis, all of Indianapolis, Ind., will arrive Thursday, as will Mr. Pelton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Edmund Pelton, Herkimer, N. Y., and his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler Gould Harrison, East Orange, N. J. Mrs. Edward C. McDonald, Bronxville, N. Y., Miss Culver's godmother, is also expected Thursday.

A large contingent of guests, including out-of-town members of the bridal party, will arrive Friday. They include: Miss Constance Lewis, cousin of the bride-elect, who will come from Western College, Oxford, O.; Miss Janet Jones, a student at Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla.; Miss Elizabeth Craig, who will come from Smith College, Northampton, Mass.; bridesmaids: Miss Gertrude McKeon and Miss Mary Farnum, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. McDonald, Indianapolis; Mrs. John V. Parker, Miami Beach; Miss Mary Culver's grandmother; the prospective bride's uncles, Gen. Gordon Culver, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Col. and Mrs. W. G. Johnston, Col. W. E. Gregory, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Barada, Culver, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. Brinton Webb Woodward, Topeka, Kan.

A group of Mr. Pelton's attendants will fly to St. Louis for the wedding, arriving Saturday. They are: David Hamlin, Burrell, III, Syracuse, N. Y.; Edwin R. Culver III, a student at Cornell University; William H. Staring Jr., Cornell, O., and William K. Hoagland Jr., Boston.

Another bride-elect, Miss Nancy Houser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas B. Houser, will be honored by many parties this week and next. Her marriage to Stuart Hoxton Smith will take place Friday, Feb. 10.

The only debutante affair of the week-end was the dinner and theater party Mrs. John Potter Raymond, 7120 Westmoreland drive, gave last night in honor of Miss Mary Ellen Niedringhaus, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Holliday Niedringhaus. The 18 guests were invited for dinner at 6:30 o'clock at the Crystal Terrace of the Park Plaza. Seated with Mrs. Niedringhaus and the hostess, at a separate table, was Mr. Raymond's brother, Gould W. Froenke.

Afterward, the group went to the Little Theater where they saw the current production, "She Stoops to Conquer."

A tea and buffet supper were included in the Friday parties. The first was given by Mrs. John F. Shepley at her home, 4540 Lindell boulevard, in honor of Mrs. Louis A. Baker of Bala, Pa. The visitor is Mrs. Ethan A. H. Shepley's mother, who is here for a several-week visit.

Mrs. Wade T. Childress, who with her children and her sister, Miss Ellen Bates, will leave today for two months at Tucson, Ariz., was honored at the later affair. Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Childress were invited for 7 o'clock by Mr. and Mrs. Russell W. Murphy at their home in the St. Louis Country Club grounds. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. Garneau Weld, Mr. and Mrs. John Kennard Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Chouteau Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence King, Mrs. Denman Clark and Miss Bates.

Mr. Childress will join his family later in the season. Mrs. Murphy is planning a visit to New York where she will be with her mother, Mrs. M. K. Keay.

Miss Natalie Allen, senior at Maryville College, will entertain 75 friends at cocktails this afternoon from 4 to 8 o'clock at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. E.

Dr. J. M. Hepbron
To Speak Tomorrow
At Junior League

DR. JAMES MERRITT HEPBORN, student of crime in 17 countries and authority on penology in the United States, will address the Junior League at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning in the league clubrooms, 4932 Maryland avenue. The title of his speech is "Hall, F felon, Well Met!"

Dr. Hepbron, who speaks from first-hand knowledge on crime detection, crime prevention, probation and juvenile delinquency, is a graduate of the City College of Baltimore and the University of Maryland, and has honorary degrees from several other Eastern colleges.

For several years Dr. Hepbron was associated with the War and Navy departments as director of the intelligence unit of the inter-departmental board. He served with Raymond Moley as consultant to the Pennsylvania State Crime Commission, and at present is manager of the Baltimore Crime Commission and secretary to the United States Federation of Justice. He has studied Scotland Yard methods of dealing with criminals, and has pursued the same studies in Denmark.

Dr. Hepbron lectured before the Junior League last year, and returns by special request. After his talk the league Lecture Committee will entertain him at luncheon.

The next regular meeting of the league will be held Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.
A BUNDLE of American seed catalogues was sent to the Duchess of Windsor from Washington the other day by a close friend. This is an indication that the Duke and Duchess of Windsor are planning a memory garden in the grounds of the Chateau de la Croix, where they have settled down. Gardening was one of the things which drew them together. When Wallis Warfield, then Mrs. Winfield Spencer, occupied an apartment on Connecticut avenue, she had a garden which she filled with garden boxes of growing things.

At Fort Belvidere, the Duke, then King of England, and the future Duchess spent hours discussing the varying merits of English and American flowers and plants.

It is said that the Duke's interest in his garden at Fort Belvidere has made it one of the things he has mourned most since leaving England.

Slips and seeds and even whole plants and shrubs from Fort Belvidere have been taken to the Duke from his English home to be transplanted in the new chateau grounds.

The tiny jeweled heart charm that swung from a bracelet on the arm of the Baroness Eugenie de Rothschild during her recent visit to Washington attracted the eyes of many. This charm was the gift of the Duke of Windsor and his American Duchess. It was in the Austrian home of the Baroness that the former King awaited the news that he was free to go to France to marry Mrs. Wallis Warfield Spencer Simpson.

Many who attended the conference for the Cause and Cure in Washington this week held sessions side by side with the Women's Patriotic Council for National Defense found it hard to realize that Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, suffrage leader and worker for world peace has passed her eightieth birthday.

Mrs. Catt remembers the days when Susan B. Anthony and her little band would trudge up Pennsylvania avenue n. w. to the Capitol to urge the cause of woman suffrage on a Congress more than indifferent to their pleas.

As King George VI during his White House visit examines the rare prints in President Roosevelt's marine collection hanging on the walls of the rooms assigned to him doubtless he will compare them mentally with his own collection. Since his childhood the King has been collecting them and he also inherited a goodly number from his father, the late King George V.

Mrs. William E. Borah, wife of the Senator from Idaho, still carries magazines to the disabled veterans at St. Elizabeth's Hospital. For years Mrs. Borah has been visiting the wards there.

A British paper is commenting on the President's birthday balls and praised the use of that date for the campaign against infantile paralysis and reminded many that birth day balls of the President were important dates in the administration of George Washington.

Mrs. Edward Beale McLean and her daughter, Miss Evelyn Washington McLean, will go to Palm Beach, Fla., to join her sons, John R. McLean II and Edward Beale McLean and their bride there. They will take the dogs from their home, Friendship.

Presbyterian Women to Meet.

The Woman's Missionary Society of West Presbyterian Church will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the church. The Rev. Albert G. Edwards of the United Mission of Mesopotamia will be the principal speaker. The Rev. Dr. William R. Lampe, pastor of the church, also will speak. A tea will be given after the meeting.

New Yorkers Give Parties for Charity

Davis' work is that each fall she and Mr. Davis take an extensive trip to check on routes, accommodations and traveling conditions. They find themselves in many out-of-the-way places and are fortunate in being able to speak French, German, Spanish and Italian.

At Christmas time they went to Cuba to try out the Kawana Beach Club, a new resort near Havana; and were there at the same time as Ambassador William C. Bullitt. Next fall they plan to go to Finland to look over travel facilities for the Olympic Games to be held there in 1940.

Mrs. Davis is small and dark prefers tailored clothes, mostly browns and tans, to match her hair and eyes. The apartment which she and Mr. Davis occupy at 1265 Madison avenue is one of the remodeled Vincent Astor group, with high-ceilinged rooms. In her living room she has used deep blue upholstery, and the same tones in the dining room with its heavily carved furniture and linen curtains.

Mrs. John R. Caulk, and her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Caulk Jr., Mrs. Evans is the former Miss Betty Caulk.

Mrs. E. Neg Gray of New York and her young son, Laurence Brian Gray, will remain two weeks longer with Mrs. Gray's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Flandreau Miller. Mr. and Mrs. Gray formerly lived in England.

The four guests of Miss Miriam Hemingway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Linn Hemingway, who arrived yesterday, will be entertained at several parties during their short stay. The guests are Miss Floy Plunkett, Miss Pauline Davis, Miss Virginia Harrison and Miss Lucille Gergen of Little Rock, Ark., who arrived by automobile with Mrs. Hemingway's niece, Mrs. Frank Parke.

Tonight Miss Edith Jenkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Jenkins, will entertain the guests at a buffet supper, and tomorrow Miss Hemingway will give a luncheon at the Junior League clubroom. The visitors will depart Tuesday morning, while Mrs. Parke will remain for a few days before leaving to visit relatives in Texas.

Mrs. Dorset V. Graves of Seattle, Wash., arrived yesterday afternoon to visit her niece, Miss Lucille Gladney, daughter of Frank G. Gladney. Mrs. Graves will remain for a few days before leaving to visit relatives in Texas.

Mrs. Benjamin Jerome Sands of Madison, Conn., returned home Friday after a short visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lon Hocker Jr.

Human Society Benefit Feb. 17.
An annual card party and dance for the benefit of the Human Society of Missouri will be given Friday night, Feb. 17, at the Coronado Hotel. Miss Mary Mitchell is general chairman of the party.

MISS SARA LEE AUERBACH, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Auerbach of Edwardsville, Ill., and granddaughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Julius Hess, 809 Washington street, was married last night at 6:30 o'clock to Robert F. Miller, son of Mrs. M. Rosenfeld of Hillboro, Ill. The ceremony was performed at the St. Charles Country Club by the bride's grandfather. For the setting a canopy of flowers and ferns was improvised in front of the fireplace, which was banked with wood-wardia fern and lighted by candles.

The bride, who has spent much time visiting in St. Charles as well as being a student at Lindenwood College, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white satin gown with fitted bodice, full hoop skirt and long train which was covered by a trailing veil of illusion. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Miss Joan Brauman and Miss Jacqueline Miller were bridesmaids. They were dressed alike in full-skirted blue net frocks, and carried pink snapdragons. The ushers were Henry Hess of St. Charles and Sidney Goldman of Springfield, Ill. Two young cousins of the bride, Eunice May Brauman and Phyllis Jacobs of St. Louis, as flower girls wore duplicates of the bridesmaids' costumes and carried bouquets of sweetheart roses. Franklin Allen Jacobs of St. Louis was ring bearer. Mrs. Saul Wolff played the wedding march and Miss de Lillis Buse and Abe Hess sang "Because."

Following the ceremony a dinner and reception were held for 200 guests, many of whom were from out of the city.

Miss Rose Giatta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael L. Giatta, 1062 Madison street, became the bride of Earl Gruenewald, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gruenewald, at St. Borromeo's Church Wednesday morning. The bride chose a costume suit of fog blue, trimmed in silver fox, with which she used wine-colored accessories. Her shoulder bouquet was of white orchids. She was attended by her sister, Miss Mayme Giatta, who was dressed in a sheer, wine-colored wool dress, with matching accessories. Elmer Jackson, nephew of the bride, was his attendant. Immediately following the ceremony the newlyweds left on a short trip. On their return they will make their home at 920 North Third street.

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Mary Powell and Edwin John Ley, which is set for 10 o'clock the morning of Feb. 10, at St. Boniface's Church, with the Rev. W. B. Sonnenmauer officiating. Miss Powell is the daughter of Mrs. Randolph D. Powell and granddaughter of Mrs. Callie Pieper, both of 125 North Fifth street. Mr. Ley is the son of Charles Ley of Pine Lawn, Mo.

Mrs. Casel H. Burke, 219 North Kingshighway, entertained in honor of the bride-to-be with a miscellaneous shower yesterday afternoon.

Men of the St. Charles Country Club held a star dinner Thursday night. The party was called a golf dinner and plans for the coming season on the links were discussed. After dinner cards were played.

A surprise party was given to celebrate George V. Gross' birthday anniversary at his home, 711 Monroe street, Monday night. Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Huncker Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. John H. Fischbach were the hosts and hostesses.

Miss Francis B. Rauch, 1830 Watson street, was hostess to her Tuesday Afternoon Contract Club at a dessert bridge party. Mrs. Charles B. Mudd was a guest.

New officers for the St. Charles Garden Club are: President, Mrs. Edwin B. Denker; vice-president, Mrs. Betty Gass of Cottleville, Mo.; secretary, G. Louis Heck, and treasurer, Mrs. L. E. Belding. The February meeting is scheduled for the third Thursday and will be held in the library club rooms at Lindenwood College, with Dr. Marian Dawson as hostess.

Miss Florence Woolfolk, principal of McKinley School, spoke on benefits derived from social welfare work in the community at a public meeting sponsored by the American Association of University Women at the Public Library Monday afternoon. Another open session will be held at 4:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the library. Mrs. Edward Ahrens will speak on "Rehabilitation of the Farmer."

The honorary art fraternity at Lindenwood College, Kappa Pi, gave a tea Tuesday afternoon in the library club rooms of the school for guests of the members. Dr. Alice Linnemann, sponsor of the fraternity, was hostess, with Miss Lillian Rasmussen assisting. Dr. John L. Roemer was guest of honor and other guests present, in addition to those invited by each student member, were: Dean Alice Gibson, Miss Edna Hough, Mrs. Elizabeth Le Master, Miss Anna Mottinger, Mrs. Hal C. Gardner, Miss Ruth Anderson and Mrs. Cora Hubbell.

Miss Corinne Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Meyer, 817 Monroe street, has been taken into Kappa Delta Pi, honorary education fraternity at Northeast Missouri State Teachers' College at Kirkville.

Stephen Blackhurst, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Blackhurst, 911 Kingshighway, has been chosen to play a part in the opera "Martha" to be given Feb. 15 at Kirkville by the music department of the teachers' college.

The annual meeting of the alumni of St. Peter's High School was held Monday night. Plans were made for coronation of the homecoming basketball queen Feb. 9. The homecoming basketball game of St. Peter's High School with Champlain College will be the following evening. New officers chosen for the alumni are: President, Alfred Henning; vice-president, Joseph Mueller; treasurer, Ralph Brockgreitens, and secretary, Miss Clarice Borgmeyer.

John W. Hanes, New Deal's Hope For Promoting Business Peace And Recovery, Gives His Ideas

Under-Secretary of Treasury, Former Wall Street Man, Thinks Solution Lies in Housing, Railroads, Utilities and Taxation.

By RICHARD L. STOKES
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.

View of 1940 and with the adage in mind that no party has ever been re-elected to power in the midst of a depression, the Roosevelt administration, for promoting its new policy of peace with big business, has found a liaison officer in John W. Hanes, 46-year-old North Carolinian, who on Nov. 1 was appointed Under-Secretary of the Treasury with general supervision of that department's tax program and its tax-collecting agency, the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Hanes owes to a paradox his front-line position of intermediary between Government and business.

He is a New Dealer from Wall Street and a champion of many Roosevelt reforms who has been senior partner of a New York investment banking house, a member of the New York Stock Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade, and a director of some 20 great steamship, airways, investment and industrial corporations. He was appointed a commissioner of the Securities and Exchange Commission, in Dec. 26, 1937, and took a commanding part in the reorganization of the New York Stock Exchange following the Richard Whitney scandal. He was named an Assistant Secretary of the Treasury on July 1, 1938, and held the post until his elevation to the present one.

"Lost in the Shuffle." In a recent address before the Chamber of Commerce of his native city, Winston-Salem, Hanes took as text a passage from President Roosevelt's message at the opening of Congress—a passage which he said had been "lost in the shuffle" on account of the foreign situation and the announcement of the budget. It reads as follows:

"We have passed the period of internal conflict in the launching of our program of social reform. Our full energies may now be released to invigorate the processes of recovery."

This meant, Hanes told his audience of employers, that "we may assume the administration has substantially completed its reforms and that we shall now see the full powers of the Government applied to recovery."

To this end, he added, there are four fields which offer most important opportunities for Government and business to get together. These he named as housing, railroads, public utilities and taxation. Asked to amplify in an interview newspaper reports of his address, Hanes today said:

"The country has long been seeking a new activity of production which would do for industry what was accomplished by the automobile. That new activity, I believe, may well be housing. To start with, there is a lag of at least a billion dollars in building left undone during the last six years. The total shortage in housing probably runs into billions. I know of no other industry that requires a greater variety of products, running from completely fabricated to raw materials."

"The building industry had in 1938, I am informed, its best year since 1929. In this field private enterprise and labor can contribute substantially to recovery by supplementing and co-operating with the efforts of Government agencies. I am convinced that with the housing program we are entering on a period of sustained forward movement in real building."

Needs of Railroads. The railroads, he continued, which last year virtually ceased buying materials and equipment, are capable, if restored to normal purchasing power, of taking more than half a billion dollars' worth of goods annually from the heavy industries—the field in which lies our biggest opportunity for re-employment." How this is to be done, he said, he constitutes a problem "demanding tolerable co-operation by management, labor and government."

Hanes offered no solution of his own, and declined to comment on a view expressed in various sectors of the New Deal to the effect that the railroads can never be restored to vigor unless they are "put through the wringer"—that is, until the excessive indebtedness

Air Power and Problem Of Defending America

DAY OF BIG 10,000-MILE BOMBER IS AT HAND

Gen. Andrews, Who Soon Will Move GHQ to Scott Field, Ill., Points Out if U. S. Can Build Such Ships, So Too Can Other Countries.

Coming of the "big ship"—the military airplane of the future, capable of crossing the Atlantic Ocean, dropping bombs and returning to its home base—was predicted by Major-General Frank M. Andrews, head of the General Headquarters Air Force, in an address before the recent convention of the National Aeronautic Association in St. Louis. The GHQ Air Force based at Langley Field, Va., but to be removed to Scott Field, Ill., when the latter field has been reconstructed, is the only all-round air combat force possessed by the United States.

By GEN. FRANK M. ANDREWS

HERE is a tendency in the United States to think that the science of aeronautics has reached its zenith; that airplanes capable of easily crossing the oceans and returning, non-stop, are figments of a Jules Verne imagination. The truth is that we have hardly scratched the surface in possibilities of large airplane development.

The so-called super-bombers of today are actually nothing but small prototypes of the airplanes of the near future. It was only a few weeks ago that two bombers of the British Air Force flew non-stop from Egypt to Australia—a distance of 7160 miles.

The big airplane of tomorrow is a certainty. Normal progress alone will produce it; but if any country's national policy dictates its necessity, development will be greatly accelerated.

I believe that any of our large airplane companies would be glad to contract to build a bomber capable of a tactical range of 10,000 miles. If American airplane manufacturers can build such a bomber, it can be done in other countries. What is more, it will be done. In fact, we do not know that it is not already being done.

Air Power: What It Is, What It Has Accomplished

The air power of a nation, as defined in the Training Regulations of the United States Army, is "its capacity to conduct air operations; specifically, the power which a nation is capable of exerting by means of its air forces."

Air power in its present stage of development has accomplished two things. It has thrown the balance of power in war again to the offense, and it has provided nations with a new agency to further their national policies, whether such policies be good or evil.

Because of its ability to strike rapidly, and without warning, against the vital economic and social structures of highly organized countries, it has become a formidable instrument in the hands of aggressor nations.

Air power is the only formula that can assure us that idly by while foreign nations build up powerful air forces with which they may threaten our peace and security. In these days, it is apparent that force must be neutralized by force; that threat must be neutralized by the fear of retaliation.

Air attacks recognize no Maginot line or naval blockade. Pursuit and anti-aircraft gunfire render an air attack only less effective.

There Are Only Two Ways Of Stopping an Air Attack

There are only two ways of stopping an air attack. One is to prevent the hostile air force from getting close enough to launch an attack; the other is to stop the aggressor nation from even planning the attack, through fear of retaliation.

At Munich, apparently, we saw the threat of superior air power defeat, in diplomacy, the greatest army in Europe, and the greatest navy in the world.

The results of Munich definitely established the fact that air power is one of the three links in the chain of national defense, and clearly illustrated the well known, but often overlooked fact, that a chain is no stronger than its weakest link. There air power, toppling the diplomatic balance, forcibly demonstrated its potentialities as an instrument of national policy.

In the past, armies and navies served as barriers to protect the homeland from the ravages of war. Although an invaded nation suffered, the brunt of the punishment was taken by the military forces and not by the civilian population. And while war is a destroyer of wealth, the heavy demands on industry often resulted in a quickened tempo of prosperity—a war boom.

Powerful industrial concerns grew more powerful. Wealthy business concerns grew wealthier, governments, in relative security behind their armies and navies, were not so hesitant in their diplomatic maneuverings.

Air power has changed all this. The seat of government will constitute a bombing objective of high priority, and the first blow can be struck within a few hours after the decision to strike has been made. Its effects will be felt immediately by industry. Great industrial concerns instead of becoming more powerful may be entirely destroyed. Stocks will decrease instead of increase in value.

The combat crews to man each airplane fully must be trained and available, and they must have sufficient experience to prepare them thoroughly in their particular specialty. A superior pilot is of little value if his bomber cannot place the bomb on the target, and both will fail unless a competent navigator succeeds in directing the airplane to its objective. Also, without skilled mechanics to keep the airplane and its accessories which airplanes travel enables them to cover long distances in a short time. It is these characteristics of air forces that increase the power of the offense in war and make the airplane such a terrible instrument in the hands of unscrupulous governments.

Air power is not a commodity that can be procured in the open market, no matter how much gold and silver may be available. Money will not buy it, desire will not create it after the need for it has arisen. Like a navy, it takes years to build. Timely foresight is the only formula that can assure its development.

The question naturally arises, what would constitute for our country an effective air force. A nation's geographic situation has a large bearing on the constitution of its air force. In any land or naval engagement, the advantage lies with that force which has the longer range weapon. This same principle applies to the defense of an area by an air force. The nation which has the air force which can reach the hostile air bases without fear of having its own bases attacked, has a distinctly superior advantage in any conflict. It is the 45-caliber revolver against the 30-caliber revolver.

Money will not buy it, desire will not create it after the need for it has arisen. Like a navy, it takes years to build. Timely foresight is the only formula that can assure its development.

The question naturally arises, what would constitute for our country an effective air force. A nation's geographic situation has a large bearing on the constitution of its air force. In any land or naval engagement, the advantage lies with that force which has the longer range weapon. This same principle applies to the defense of an area by an air force. The nation which has the air force which can reach the hostile air bases without fear of having its own bases attacked, has a distinctly superior advantage in any conflict. It is the 45-caliber revolver against the 30-caliber revolver.

Air power is not a commodity that can be procured in the open market, no matter how much gold and silver may be available. Money will not buy it, desire will not create it after the need for it has arisen. Like a navy, it takes years to build. Timely foresight is the only formula that can assure its development.

Relief as a Permanent Problem; Findings and Proposals of Byrnes Senate Unemployment Committee

Present Aid to Needy Often Inadequate—Unification of Government Agencies and Elimination of Politics Prime Objectives.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.

REALISTIC presentation of unemployment and relief as permanent problems of the Federal Government, with concrete suggestions for removing them from political influence and for providing more adequately for those actually in need of public assistance, was made to the Senate last week in a report by a special committee on unemployment of which the chairman is Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina.

It is noteworthy that three of the five members of this committee—Chairman Byrnes and Senators Clark of Missouri and Hatch of New Mexico, all Democrats—voted yesterday against increasing the appropriation for WPA in the close vote by which the Senate accepted the amount specified in the House bill and turned down the administration's plea for more money. The other two members, Frazier (Rep.) of North Dakota, and Murray (Dem.) of Montana, voted for increasing the appropriation from $725,000,000 to $875,000,000, the amount requested by the President.

Amendments to the end that they may be of maximum effectiveness, unemployment compensation is designed to provide for workers during periods of sudden or temporary unemployment. Public assistance should have the effect of providing security and support for old people, children, and handicapped persons. Public work should provide employment and a means of livelihood for unemployed workers at times when and as long as private industry cannot use their services.

Unemployment Benefits. Beginning Jan. 1, all but three of the states will pay unemployment benefits. This must be our first line of defense for unemployed workers covered by that system. It is designed only to meet temporary unemployment. It should relieve such condition with certainty and dispatch. It now fails to do this. It undertakes to make payment in proportion to the earnings of the workers. As a result the payments are so slow of ascertainment that in many cases the applicant goes to a relief office for help. In other cases, the payments are so small that relief offices must supplement income. The payments are of such short duration as to be of minimum value as a means of security.

The waiting period for unemployment compensation should be shortened to one week. The period of benefits should be lengthened. The amount of the benefits should be fixed at a few standard figures, based on the average earnings of a few standard crafts or skills. The complicated tax system should be simplified.

The law should be amended to provide that Federal appropriations to cover the cost of administration be made available only if employees are selected through a merit system, and provided further that there be paid to the unemployed worker at least the minimum benefits established by the Federal Act.

A suggested schedule of weekly payments for unemployment compensation is as follows:

Per week, Persons earning under $15 per week — — — — — $5.00 Persons earning $15 to $2

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Morn in Russet Mantle Clad.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
THERE is a show in the southeastern sky these mornings that would again inspire Sidney Lanier, who wrote the great poem "Sunrise" at Baltimore, in 1880. I chose the morning of Jan. 25 for observing the coming of dawn and the duration of twilight, to check data in a recent publication on the subject. The main purpose of this adventure was indeed interesting, but the beauty and glory of the attending heavens contributed much more exalted pleasure.

It was a rare day in January. At 5:30 a. m. the sky was clear, with no light but the light of stars, the wind was quiet, the ground well covered with snow, the temperature was 22 degrees. It was a normal January morning at its best. The sun was due on the horizon at 7:15, at a point considerably south of east.

Venus, almost at its all-time maximum brightness, was already an hour above the horizon, directly in the southeast, leading the way for the sun. At 7 a. m. a few degrees away from Venus, although red as usual, cut a sorry figure as he slunk to the westward. Love was much more glorious than war.

The show went on. By 5:40 a very faint lighting of the eastern horizon could be detected. In a few moments, the rustle of the rose-yellow garments of approaching Aurora might be heard. "Astronomical" twilight was beginning. (Definition: the interval between sunrise, or sunset, and the time when the sun's center is 18 degrees below the horizon.) Venus was still in all her glory.

At 6 a. m. light on the eastern horizon distinctly noticeable. At 6:33, a rosy glow on eastern horizon. Venus still large and bright. At 6:42 I could just barely see to read newspaper print (probably helped some by the snow). "Civil" twilight begins. (Definition: interval between sunrise, or sunset, and the time when the sun's center is six degrees below the horizon.) Venus was still in all her glory.

At 6:48 I could read slowly. Venus still bright, but Mars almost gone. At 6:50 I read easily. Venus holding out with surprising power; Mars blank; eastern sky pink-yellow near horizon, faint lemon up to 25 or 30 degrees. At 7 a. m. eastern glow has spread to zenith. Venus much smaller, but still bright. At 7:03, faint pink covers the horizon.

At 7:13 (just as expected—wonderful how accurate these almanacs are!) the sun's upper limb appears. Venus now only a big dot, but distinct. At 7:19, sun in full view. Venus bowing to the inevitable, but still a distinct bright point. (Redbird appears for his breakfast, followed very soon by a sparrow; sparrows had been on hand for some time.) And, believe it or not, I observed Venus for another hour.

Am I not justified in saying that the stars heavens in January, just before dawn, are worth (for once, at least) the extra effort required to go forth and see? See "the morn in russet mantle clad" and realize "that the 'innocent brightness of a new-born day' is lovely yet." Wind up your clock in that way, and you'll strike the time all day.

A Voter on the Conservation Law.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I WOULD like to assure Senator Quinn of Lewis County that we voters were fully conscious when we voted for the conservation amendment in 1936. We thought that this amendment would take the Game and Fish Department out of politics. We realized the commission would have wide powers to regulate hunting, fishing and wildlife, and we gave the amendment a 500,000-vote majority.

It is time for Senator Quinn and his clique to listen to the voice of the people on this important question. A majority of 500,000 can't be so "dumb."

VOTER.

The State of the Citizens.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
A GREAT American is quoted as having said that the Constitution was likely to be well administered for a course of years and could only end in despotism when the people had become so corrupted as to need despotic government. Macaulay said our Republic would be pillaged, but that our "barbarians" would be the people of our own country and the product of our own institutions.

Has this time come? Have we become so corrupted and lawless that we deserve and are going to have a government of men rather than of law? If men have no respect for force only, and no regard for the principle of law? If men have no real conviction in democratic ways, no loyalty to laws made by majority choice, the Government will fall to their level.

Football Abuses at Missouri U.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I DEEPLY appreciate Sports Editor I Wray's recent article on modern methods of recruiting and subsidizing football players. His allusion to the tactics of our State University in bolstering the strength of her teams was especially amusing, as the University of Missouri has always been first to raise the charge of professionalism against other schools.

Perhaps a general cleaning of her own house would be in order for the Athletic Board of this institution, before pointing the finger of suspicion at other schools.

FAIR PLAY.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH, SUNDAY, JANUARY 29, 1939.

WHEN THE CUPBOARD IS BARE.

The curtain has fallen on Southeast Missouri's roadside drama. The sharecroppers and their plight are no longer thrust under society's nose. What a happy circumstance it is that we don't know "how the other half lives," or dies! A truly comforting dispensation, that is getting thinner, perhaps, as the want-and-wage plot thickens.

A vagrant bit of philosophy has drifted down reminiscently from that brief, poignant pageant by the side of the road. A sharecropper, as related in our news columns, was talking.

"Gran'pap told me the slaves weren't so bad off," he said, folding his eviction notice. "He used to say that there always was a warm cabin and somethin' for the pot and griddle. The worst drawback was the constrictions—couldn't go an' come like they pleased.

"Now it looks like it's just turned 'round. I'd be pleased to trade some non-constrictions for a side of meat."

In a higher literary key, but in language every whit as lucid and thrusting, this same theme was elaborated in an article the Post-Dispatch reprinted last Tuesday from the New Republic. The author, Sturt Chase, who scorns the ponderous patter of the economists, was telling us how to head off a dictatorship. He advised us to have done with melodramatic flag-waving and bombastic periods to "liberty" and "freedom." People cannot eat abstractions. "For every cultivated American liberal who cares profoundly about the Bill of Rights," he asserted, "there are 99 citizens in the lower-income groups who care more profoundly about employment and security." Like the grandson of that ante-bellum "gran'pap," they would gladly trade some non-constriction for a side of meat.

When people become hungry enough and desperate enough, they turn to the Strong Man. Mr. Chase pronounces no dogma. He recites facts. The remnants of Europe are his documents in evidence.

"When will the people of the United States turn to a Strong Man?" he asks. His answer is, "When they are fed up with being half-fed." That submerged third of our people, "the ill-fed, ill-clothed, ill-housed" of Mr. Roosevelt's humanitarian concern, cannot be got rid of by eviction, or lookout, or callously superior indifference. There they are, the flesh-and-blood transcription of unemployment. In another day, in a different economy, they could cynically be dismissed with "the devil take the hindmost." But today they cannot be laughed off, or cursed off, or forgotten.

Here, in the depression's tenth year, for all the energy and all the billions we have spent, we have made little, if any, advance against unemployment. That is the hour's first problem. That is ability's supreme job today—ability in every field, official and unofficial.

"We may live without poetry, music and art . . ." Owen Meredith long ago listed the embellishments we could dispense with, concluding on the note that "We may live without love—what is passion but pinning?"

"But civilized man cannot live without dining." Man may not live by bread alone, but he cannot live without bread.

Cherish the Bill of Rights, but don't forget the Bill of Fare.

GOVERNOR AND GOD.

Hitler's Nazism is moving in its logical, brutal course with respect to the suppression of religion. Its agents have now prohibited Catholic priests from presenting religious instruction in the schools of Salzburg, long one of the great spiritual centers of Europe. The Archbishop there, it seems, declined to replace a priest charged by the Nazis with having used "religious instruction for political purposes."

The Jewish faith, the faith of Pastor Niemoeller, who dies a long death in prison, the faith of the Catholics, all are essentially the same to a dictatorship which makes itself religion as well as state. As set forth in the article by S. K. Padover, reprinted in part on this page today, Catholicism is now becoming the victim of intensified fury. The old denominations in the end can have no place when the ruler sets himself up not only as governor but as a god. This is the grim truth and there is no use for Americans to shut their eyes to it.

TRADE BARRIERS AMONG THE STATES.

Gov. Stark's message to the fourth assembly of the Council of State Governments at Washington was addressed to the problem of state liquor legislation which discriminates against the products of other states. This is an important problem, important in itself and for its implications.

State laws which operate as barriers to trade between the states are directly contrary to the idea of a Federal union of free commonwealths. In large measure, it was to eliminate all such commercial structures and the resulting animosities that the Federal Constitution was written and adopted. It would be sheerest folly now to allow the desire of a few states to shut out competing liquors from other states to engender widespread interstate tensions and reprisals.

Gov. Stark's message should be a cue to the Missouri Legislature. The retaliatory statute now on the Missouri lawbooks should be repealed. A measure looking to interstate co-operation on liquor regulation through the compact plan should be proposed in its place. Missouri can distinguish itself by leading a movement to remove the present dangerous condition, which is no small threat to harmony within the nation.

OSCAR DANE'S NEW ROLE.

It becomes clear that the Rev. Mary H. Ellis, the itinerant vice crusader and pulp-fiction purist, is a very human person after all. A few weeks ago, she went to the theater to see Claire Luce's mildly ribald play "The Women," and was heard, in an unguarded moment, to give a hearty chuckle or two. Pressed for an explanation, she declared that her laugh was a "purely physical reaction."

In the trial of Joseph Foster, a book store proprietor whom the Rev. Mrs. Ellis has been active in prosecuting, other interesting facts have come to light. It was revealed, for example, that the anti-vice evangelist was convicted in Philadelphia of asking for and receiving money without registering with the proper authorities. Mrs. Ellis said she was convicted on a "technicality," but, again, her acceptance of the donation may have been a purely physical, as contrasted with spiritual, reaction.

The most interesting morsel turned up in the trial here, however, was the revelation that Mrs. Ellis' chief assistant in curbing vice, Mrs. Emma G.

Meyers, a singer, employed Oscar Dane as her agent. Oscar Dane, as the operator of the old Gayety and Liberty theaters, was the city's outstanding exponent of burlesque. His talent for combining the glorification of the feminine figure with coarse innuendo gave him notoriety throughout the Midwest.

Of all the incongruous associations that could be imagined in St. Louis, that of Oscar Dane and an assistant vice crusader achieves the superlative.

BALLOT-CONSCIOUS OR TAX-CONSCIOUS?

Political observers are saying there is little likelihood of the present congressional session's approving that highly sensible reform, broadening of the income tax base. To do so would mean increasing the bills of present taxpayers and adding thousands of new names to the rolls in 1940. No politician or party wants to hand such a package to the voters in a crucial election year.

Aside from partisan strategy, however, what objection can be raised against the step? At the present level of exemptions ($2500 for married persons and $1000 for single), only about 5 per cent of the adult public pays Federal income tax. The remaining 95 per cent of citizens, therefore, have no direct incentive for concern over governmental financial policy. They pay the piper, nevertheless. They are assailed by a host of "invisible" taxes, excises and nuisance levies which are collected indirectly, regardless of ability to pay, and swell every consumer's cost of living.

Two sound constructive steps could be achieved by broadening the tax base: creation of a new tax-consciousness that would speedily make itself felt in the seats of spending power, and elimination of many nuisance levies which now burden the public. The average citizen's net tax cost need be no larger, and might even be smaller. With elimination of tax-exempt securities and salaries, this measure would, for the first time, put the nation's tax system on a just and equitable basis.

Are the politicians too ballot-conscious to dare making the public tax-conscious?

MISCHA ELMAN'S FINE CONTRIBUTION.

One of the handsomest gestures made since Germany's refugees became a world problem is that of Mischa Elman. The distinguished violinist has just begun a coast-to-coast concert tour of 25 appearances whose entire receipts will be contributed to refugee relief. The fund will be distributed equally among Jewish, Catholic and Protestant refugees, and will be administered by a non-sectarian committee headed by Alfred E. Smith.

Mr. Elman knows what it means to be a refugee. At the age of 5, in Czarist Russia, he hid for days in a cellar with his family, after seeing a mob stone his parents, damage their home and kill some of their friends. His instinctive sympathy for the oppressed thus leads him to give an entire season's income to help better their desperate lot. A great musician has proved himself to be also a great humanitarian.

"We may live without poetry, music and art . . ." Owen Meredith long ago listed the embellishments we could dispense with, concluding on the note that "We may live without love—what is passion but pinning?"

"But civilized man cannot live without dining." Man may not live by bread alone, but he cannot live without bread.

Cherish the Bill of Rights, but don't forget the Bill of Fare.

SISLER IN VALHALLA.

The generation that gazed at George Sisler through youth's shining eyes of hero-worship is now graying at the temples, or hiding its bald spots, and getting fat, and finding that Brother Longfellow was only whispering it when he remarked that "life is real, life is earnest." But it's all right. The years have magically melted away in the righteous verdict of the Baseball Writers' Association which enrolls the name of Sisler among the game's immortals, a dweller forever in baseball's Hall of Fame.

Two others have been deservedly honored—Willie Keeler of long ago, whose precise, scientific prowess stemmed from that classic posture, "Hit 'em where they ain't"; and Eddie Collins, who administered the vast and varied responsibilities of second base with admirable fidelity and incredible ubiquity.

They have their clientele, Keeler and Collins, but Sisler dominated the diamond in the colors of our St. Louis Browns. Prohibition was an infant terrible, Warren Harding was in the White House, Model T ruled the road, when the Browns roared down through the shimmering afternoons of 1922's September on the flying heels of the Yankees. The whole Mississippi Valley was one with St. Louis in the delirium of a flag-draped dream, missed only by an ever-tormenting hair's breadth.

That was a ball team. From the shadowy distance, memory can call, in part, the roll: Tobin, Jacobson, Williams roaming the outfield; Wally Gerber, who took up the shortstop torch which fell from Bobby Wallace's hands; Shocker pacing the pitching corps with inspirational dependability. But in the ledger of sentiment, Sisler was the Browns. He was thinner at the bat, he was lightning on the bases and his guardianship of first base was lily-painted perfection.

At long, long intervals a mechanical error startled the official scorer, but never a mental misplay in the tension of the thousands of battles. So, with winged feet, arm of steel, all but unerring hands, the eagle eye and rhythmic swing of the batting champion, and the flame of the winning fighter—such was the great Sisler in the days of the Browns' greatness.

That Valhalla at Cooperstown is the professional homeland of His Excellency.

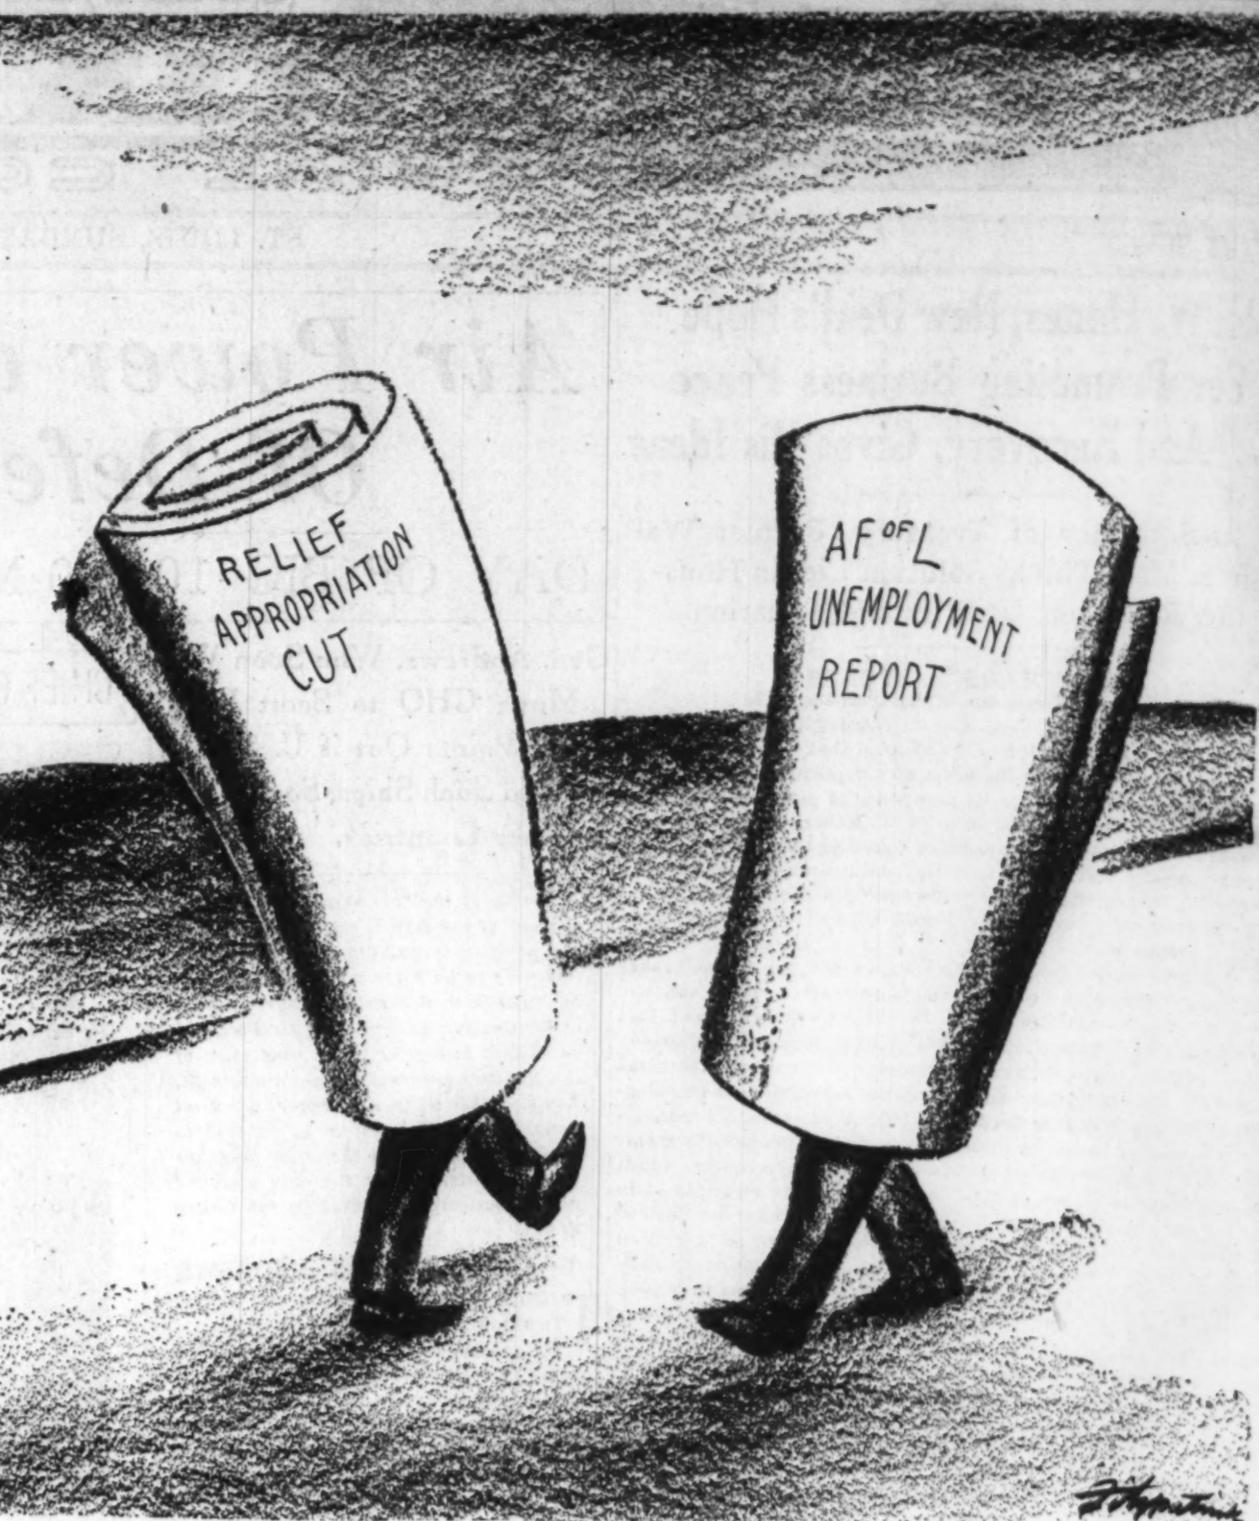

THE CITY GOVERNMENT SURVEY.

The survey of government in St. Louis, which was proposed by Mayor Dickmann's committee of business men, is to start in about two weeks. According to Sidney Maestre, chairman of the committee, the first step will be to canvass the 7000 employees of the city to find out precisely what they do.

If this first step is taken resolutely, the survey will have an excellent start. Payrollers literally overrun the City Hall. Many of them are political workers placed in city jobs to bulwark the machine and nothing else. If Mayor Dickmann had wanted to, he could have reduced the cost of municipal government long ago by ridding the payroll of these persons.

The Board of Aldermen has appropriated $44,000 to finance this survey. This is the taxpayers' money and its purpose is not to add to their bill but to disclose ways to reduce it. From a stern check of the duties of city employees, the survey should go on to study all phases of local government. The task is a big one, but it is no bigger than the opportunity. Seen to its conclusion without fear or favor, the survey can be epochal in city government in St. Louis.

It's a lucky thing for the birds in the air and the fishes in the brooks that State Senator Quinn isn't quintuplets.

PASSESS-BY.

Nazi Scapegoat No. 2—Catholicism

Flight of Catholics in Germany is rapidly becoming bad as that of Jews, writer says: Hitler regime vows destruction of church, and is speeding process daily; aims to control youth, establish paganism and seize rich properties; conflict of philosophies is beyond reconciliation, and persecutions steadily grow more severe in war on faith.

S. K. Padover, Research Scholar and Historian, in Forum and Reader's Digest.

UNS in Nazi prisons, priests in concentration camps, Catholic leaders shot, Cardinals' homes wrecked—Americans read such news and shocked at the barbarism of the Reich, are puzzled besides. The Jews were outnumbered in Germany by 200 to 1. But the Catholics count 30,000,000 in a nation of 75,000,000. How can any sane Government antagonize its people by attempting to destroy the church to which 40 per cent of them belong? What lies behind this seemingly mad course?

They answer that relentless forces are unleashed which cannot be halted. As Hilaire Belloc, the eminent Catholic writer, admitted, the conflict between Catholicism and Naziism is "beyond all reconciliation." One or the other must destroy its opponent.

German Catholics are facing the same fate as the Jews. They are Nazi Scapegoat No. 2.

The process of extirpation has gone further than the outside world realizes. Persecution began as soon as Hitler was in the saddle to which he had been hoisted not without Catholic help. By 1935, it had progressed to public trials, a la Moscow, of thousands of nuns and priests. Fined from 1000 to 150,000 marks on charges of violating the weird currency laws. Brothers of various orders were accused of sexual offenses. Catholic editors were disciplined for daring to urge a modicum of justice.

The Catholic Youth organizations were liquidated in 1936. Ludwig Welker and 100 other leaders were seized on the charge of having had relations with Communists! Many were never heard from again. In the words of Bishop Galen of Muenster: "Today there are in Germany fresh graves where rest the ashes of those whom the Catholic people regard as martyrs . . . although nothing is permitted to be revealed as to how they met their end."

Soon all Germany reverberated to the new slogan of "Roman Internationalism, the Ally of Communism." Goebbels' own Angriff constantly sneers at the "abnormal alliance between the clergy and Marxism." The Voelkischer Beobachter speaks of the "criminal attitude" of the Catholic church and its Moscovite ally.

Why Senator Byrd Opposes Government Spending Policy And Urges Balanced Budget

Virginian Says He Is Not Against Relief, but Present System Shakes Confidence of Business.

CONGRESSIONAL debate over new funds for work relief has drawn to the fore again the conflict between advocates of "deficit financing" and the "budget-balancers." Underlying the arguments are two fundamentally different theories of American business life. The Associated Press presented the views of a leading advocate of deficit finance—Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. The following article gives the philosophy of a leading budget-balancer—Senator Harry F. Byrd (Dem.), Virginia.

BY WILLIAM M. PINKERTON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.

SENATOR HARRY F. BYRD is a pay-as-you-go man. In his teens he plunged into business, taking over a small daily newspaper with credit so bad that he had to pay the paper mill in cash for each day's shipment of newsprint. He made a go of it. When the good roads movement got underway in the early 1920s, State Senator Harry Byrd led the fight against bonding the State into debt to pave all the major roads at once. His pay-as-you-go policy won in a State-wide referendum. As Governor of Virginia, he reorganized the State Administration for Economy and put through a program of that made deficit-spending difficult.

Byrd dislikes debts. He believes Government can best contribute to business prosperity by erasing the red ink from its own books. He clashes with administration economists like Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board, who believes that when business stops spending money that puts men and machines to work, the Government should take up the slack with public works and work relief.

Byrd has expressed resentment, however, at any inference "that if one opposes waste and extravagance he is willing for citizens of America to starve and freeze and suffer, and the country to stagnate because of lack of adequate Government appropriations." In a national emergency, he says, Government borrowing is justified.

Byrd's Reasoning.

Here is the argument for steering Government policy toward a balanced budget, as Byrd sees it:

The dynamo which keeps the business wheel turning is the profit motive—a man's opportunity for making a living by taking a chance on a business enterprise or a job.

Government policies which throw doubts on the opportunities of making reasonable profits in a business venture slow up the business machine, he says. He believes the spending policies of the present administration have this effect. He says they destroy the business man's confidence in his own ability to plan for the future.

"Private enterprise is more concerned about the 'hope' of profits than the profits of the hour," he explains. "This must be so, because a factory is not built for this year but for many years.

"Today, the uncertainties of business life, many of them creatures of Government, have created a lack of confidence in the business world, and this lack of confidence is one of the prime causes of our present difficulties. Confidence is the soul of business, security and prosperity."

of its own cases, from initial assessment to final collection. The local inspector has authority to make final decisions, and is expected to use it. His efficiency is measured, not by the number of rows he reports, but the peaceful settlements he effects.

Until recently, the speaker related, an American taxpayer was compelled to make a trip to Washington in order to get this case reconsidered. But the Treasury Department is now establishing regional settlement offices in all the major cities, so that the taxpayer may obtain a final decision in the locality where he lives and keeps his business records.

"Business men, who are often not too well acquainted with how the Government wheels go round, must learn that the administration has pushed through purchasing power. Between great nations, both of whom are capable of powerful air action, there will be a very eager and mutual willingness to find some peaceful solution to conflicting policies.

U.S. Fifth or Sixth Rate.

The United States today is a fifth or sixth rate air power. The GHQ air force, the entire army combat air force in continental United States, numbers today but slightly more than 400 fighting planes. In another six months, with delivery of planes now on order, this number will be increased to 630. However, sufficient personnel is not now available in the GHQ air force to man these 630 planes.

We have now, as part of our 400 combat planes, 12 long-range bombers, known as "Flying Fortresses." Some 30 more are in order. Today, as far as we know, they are the best long-range bombers in the world. We should have more of them.

Our air force must be built around long-range bombers. The ability to reach far from our shores and strike an enemy, before he can come within his effective range, should constitute the very foundation of our air defense policy. Otherwise, we shall have reaction.

Sketch of Career.

Hanes was born April 24, 1892, and was graduated from Yale in 1915. His first business ventures were in tobacco and rubber, at Winston-Salem. He entered the York Investment banking firm of Charles L. Brooks Co. in 1920, and nine years later was a partner. This firm, on Jan. 1, 1938, merged with the banking house of Edward B. Smith & Co., to form the present concern of Smith, Barney & Co.

He gained wide publicity during April of last year by persuading 16 Wall Street financial and industrial leaders to sign a pledge of "the full extent of our ability" to co-operation with President Roosevelt in seeking recovery. The signers were as follows:

Sydney G. McAllister, president of the International Harvester Co.; Winthrop W. Aldrich, board chairman of the Chase National Bank; Charles A. Cannon, president of the Cannon Mills Co.; Walter J. Cummings, board chairman of the Continental Illinois Bank & Trust Co., Chicago; Frederick H. Ecker, board chairman of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.; John M. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine Co.; Robert M. Hanes, president of the Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., Winston-Salem; Robert Wood Johnson, president of Johnson & Johnson of New Brunswick, N.J.; William C. Potter, board chairman of the Guaranty Trust Co.; S. Clay Williams, board chairman of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.; Clarence M. Woolley, board chairman of the American Radiator & Standard Sanitary Corporation; Owen D. Young, board chairman of the General Electric Corporation; Robert H. Cabell, president of Armour & Co.; Edward D. Duffield, president of Prudential Insurance Co.; Thomas J. Parkinson, president of the Equitable Life Assurance Co.; and Alfred L. Aiken, president of the New York Life Insurance Co.

The first problem of the American economy is that heavy public spending did not contribute to this business revival," he adds.

"The expenses of the Government on the contrary, were actually reduced. This recovery came from the leadership of President Roosevelt in closing the banks for the emergency; his pledge for sound economy and for a balanced budget; the faith the people of America had that under his leadership permanent prosperity would come by industry and thrift, and adherence to sound economic laws."

Recalls Earlier Depression.

There was an earlier depression right after the World War. The national income fell from 73 billion dollars in 1920 to 53 billion dollars in 1921. But, says Byrd, when Federal expenditures were reduced by two billion dollars with a corresponding reduction in taxes, national income rose.

In answer to the economists who advocate spending to bring about business recovery on the theory that Government borrowing indirectly increases the purchasing power of the people—Byrd declared recently:

"There are two ways of getting a Federal deficit. One is the method of maintaining and even expanding the existing fantastically high Government expenditures. But another way, equally effective, would be a curtailment of Government expenditures, accompanied by an equal curtailment of taxes."

Byrd sums up his philosophy of American life as "the reverence to our founders who taught the dignity and rights of the individual and who believed you could trust men if you would train them."

Reform and Recovery. The speaker hastened to explain that reform and recovery are not necessarily antagonistic. He classified as a recovery bill the law insuring bank deposits, and likewise the wage-hour act. The latter, he declares, safeguards a decent wage for the weakest group of industrial workers and protects the decent employer against the chiseling and swindling employer.

"While I was with the SEC," Hanes concluded, "I traveled a great deal and heard business men throughout the country say again and again they were not opposed to the New Deal objectives, but they declared the same and mass of new legislation had given them a headache, and begged us to slow down. 'Give us time to digest it all,' they begged. 'Let us get our breath so we can go forward.'

"If we are to keep the American system, we have got to make it work. We must get the industrial machine back on the tracks. Both sides, to begin with, should

The CRASH of the CAVALIER

A Mysterious Catastrophe and Miraculous Rescue as Reconstructed by PICTURES Artists

1. As the 18-ton British Imperial Airways flying boat, Cavalier, was over the Atlantic midway on a trip from New York to Bermuda January 21, carrying eight passengers and a crew of five, the passengers were startled when a steward suddenly announced they were "landing for luncheon." It was 1:11 p.m. They had just run into ball and now, and the four engines had mysteriously failed. Unknown to the passengers, the plane had radioed an SOS 14 minutes before.

2. Passengers strapped themselves to their seats. Charles Talbot, former Harvard athlete carrying one arm in a sling, called for a drink of whisky and had half down it when the ship smacked the heavy seas on a dead-stick landing from a 1500-foot altitude. There was a terrific crash. The aluminum hull ripped open, water poured in.

3. Radio Operator Patrick Chapman flashed "Sinking," and then the radio went dead. There was no hysteria. The crew calmly helped the passengers cut the two doors into the water. None had time to don the life preservers, in use as chair cushions, and only six were salvaged. Captain M. R. Alderson, the pilot, although dazed, gave his life preserver to Mrs. Edna Watson of Bermuda.

4. Donald Miller, president of a Lincoln (Nebraska) department store, was struck on the head by a wing and drowned.

5. The plane sank 15 minutes later as victims clung to it. First Officer Noel Richardson was sucked under, but came up again. John Nockes, president of a New York fur auction company who was badly cut on the head, hung on to him, then died. Stewart Robert Spence, although injured internally and without a life belt, helped hold up Nockes and aided others before he died too.

6. There followed 10 hours of terror, bravery and despair that made the catastrophe an epic of courage at sea. Tossed about in the big swells, the survivors made a daisy chain of the life preservers and sang to keep up their spirits. The water, luckily, was warm because of the Gulf Stream, and some kicked off their outer garments although the air was chilly. Mrs. Watson kept up a cheerful chatter and supported Captain Alderson, who had become unconscious and delirious. Mrs. Nockes, who had seen her husband die, begged hysterically to be allowed to "go with him," then pulled herself together. First Officer Richardson swam about the others in a circle, splashing to scare off sharks that hovered near. After six and one-half hours, the victims saw the lights of a distant boat and shouted desperately, but it passed on and their hearts sank.

7. Then at 10:30 p.m., the hull of a ship loomed through the darkness. Chapman swam toward it, with Richardson thrashing behind him to ward off sharks, both shouting desperately. Then they shouted with joy. Across the water came the low, hoarse moan of a siren. The ship's crew had heard them. It was almost miraculous, because there was no star or moonlight and the crew never would have seen them.

War in the Auto Union

CIVIL war, temporarily suppressed last year through the efforts of mediators, has broken out again in the United Automobile Workers, powerful CIO union, to the accompaniment of charges, suspensions, court action and some violence. It appears that this time the fight between President Homer Martin's faction and forces represented by a majority of the international executive board will go to a finish. His opponents have called Martin "a madman surrounded by gangsters;" he has branded them as Communistic.

The crisis was precipitated by Martin's suspension of officers of Plymouth Local 51 (Detroit) whom he accused of radicalism. A meeting of the local last Sunday was enlivened by fist fights despite the presence of 300 policemen. The 24-man executive board, meeting in Detroit, suspended Martin as editor of the union's newspaper. He seized records at union headquarters, later took possession of headquarters, and suspended 15 opponents on the board. Anti-Martin members of the board suspended and impeached Martin and set up new union offices which they designated as rightful international headquarters. They called a "showdown" convention for March 20 in Cleveland. Martin called one for March 4 in Detroit. Two opposing groups of men, each announcing itself as the supreme authority in the union of nearly 400,000 members, claimed for itself the right to collect dues. A Detroit court temporarily barred both factions from access to several hundred thousand dollars of union funds in banks. CIO mediators Sidney Hillman and Philip Murray upheld the anti-Martin side of the controversy. The CIO mediators declared Martin was guilty of "flagrant" violation of the UAW constitution and refused him recognition as president of the UAW. With the union split, negotiations with the Ford Motor Company, only major automobile maker still non-union, were at a standstill.

MRS. THURLOW SMOOT

(Jules Pierow Photograph)

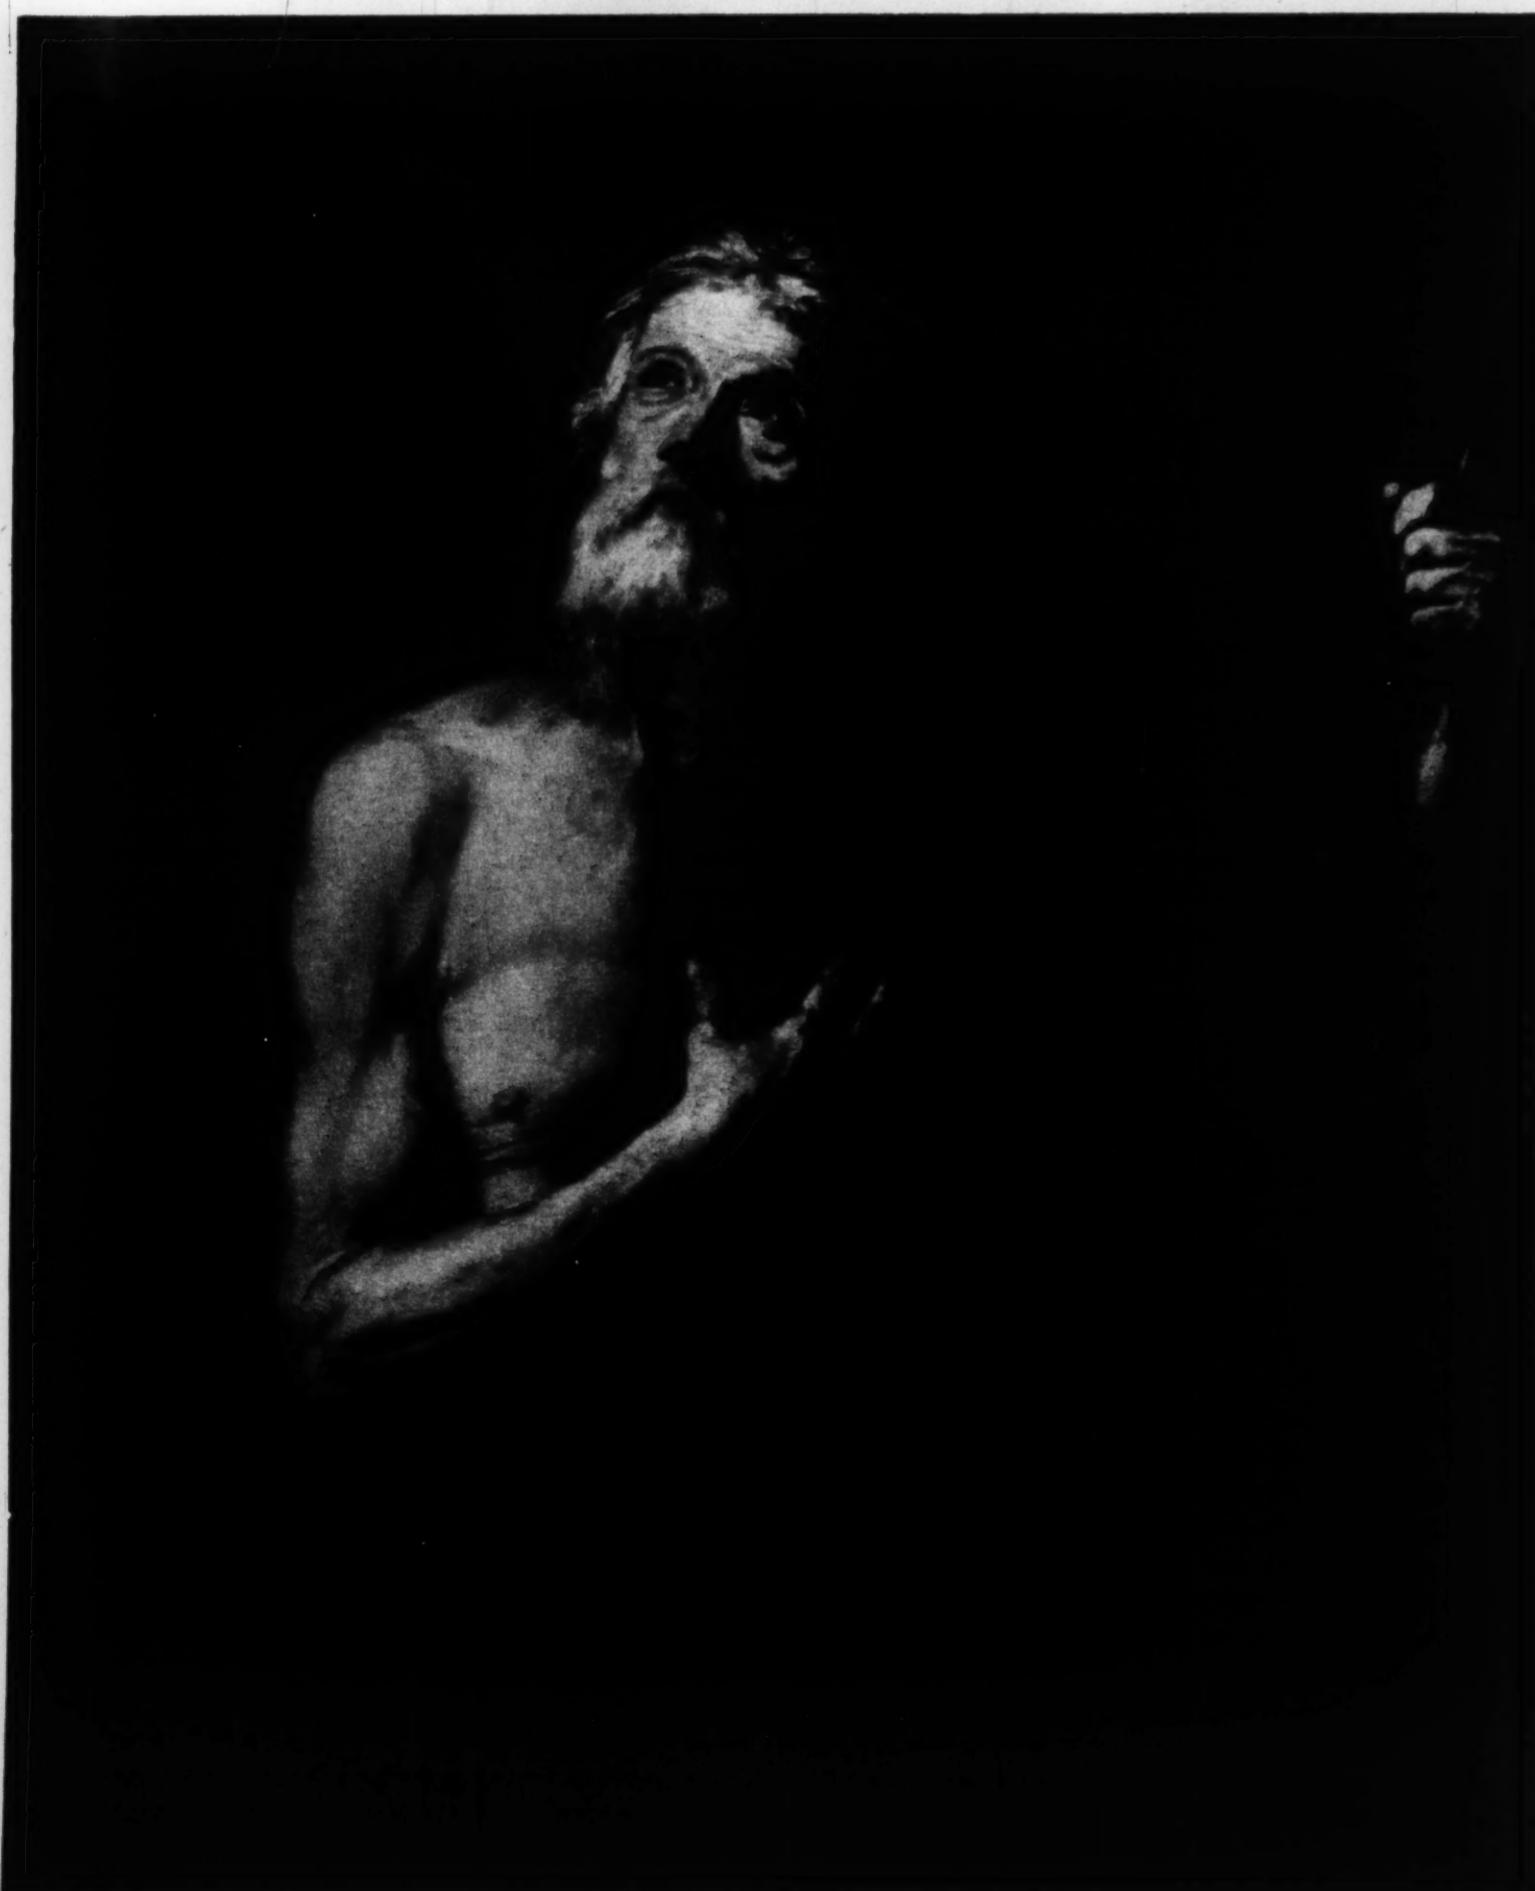

Bride of the Week

JOSEPHINE WINSLOW JOHNSON, Pulitzer Prize novelist, was married January 21 to Thurlow Smoot at Christ Church Cathedral by Bishop William F. Scarlett. Although she is best known for her first novel, "Now in November," which won for her the prize in 1935, Mrs. Smoot's activities are by no means confined to literary work. She has painted murals at the Missouri Free School and the Turner School for Negro Children. Her water colors, with those of her sister, Marjorie, have been exhibited in St. Louis. Her latest interest, presenting puppet shows with her sister as a means of advancing the cause of consumer co-operatives, was described in PICTURES, January 15. Besides her prize-winning novel, she has published a collection of short stories, "Winter Orchard," and her latest novel, "Jordantown," in 1937. She has contributed poetry, articles and stories to various periodicals and recently wrote, for the Post-Dispatch, of conditions among the evicted sharecroppers in Southeast Missouri. Mr. Smoot, whose home was at Missoula, Montana, is a graduate of the University of Montana and of the University of Colorado. In May, 1937, he joined the legal staff of the National Labor Relations Board and served in Minneapolis before coming to St. Louis.

Art Museum's Latest Acquisitions

THESE are the first paintings by Thomas Hart Benton, foremost present-day Missouri artist, and Jusepe de Ribera, Spanish master of the seventeenth century, to be acquired by the City Art Museum. Their purchase was announced recently. Benton's "Wheat," for which the artist was paid $2500, is on display in Gallery 32, and Ribera's "St. Bartholomew," bought from a New York dealer for $7500, is in Gallery 7.

The Benton painting is regarded as a good example of the vigorous work of the artist, who probably is most famed for his murals of the history and life of Missouri in the Jefferson City Capitol. Museum Director Meyric R. Rogers speaks of the work's "emotionally stirring qualities of mass and movement" emphasized by typical formalization.

The Ribera originally was in possession of Prince Sebastien de Bourbon of the Spanish royal family. It is thought to be one of a series of the apostles which Ribera, like El Greco, painted for ecclesiastical use. However, it apparently was, like the others, a study of a model rather than an idealization of the saint. Ribera, called "Lo Spagnoletto" (Little Spaniard), was born near Valencia in 1588, but settled in Naples, Italy, when a young man. His work is noted for powerful, precise drawing, a poetic feeling free from sentimentality, rich color, and, in scenes of martyrdom, a realism that stresses grimness and horror.

AS EACH year passes and Oliver Haupt Jr., becomes an increasingly better figure skater, St. Louis bids fair to add another of its citizens to the list of its national champions in sports. Ollie Haupt, as he is known to sport fans, is now officially the second best figure skater in the United States, since he was runner up to Robin Lee of St. Paul in the recent national championships. This week he will have a try at a greater prize, when he again competes with Robin Lee, this time at the North American championships at Toronto. Haupt's progress started in 1934, when in his first year of competition he won the men's national novice championship among figure skaters. By virtue of this victory he was moved up to the junior class and in the next three years placed third, second and first in succession. Last year he moved into the senior class and took third place, receiving the only perfect score from one of the five judges in the free skating portion of the competition. In this year's event he lost to Robin Lee, five-time champion, by only 92 points out of a total of 1825, a showing which practically assures him a place on the American Olympic team for 1940. Always looking forward to greater things, the 18-year-old youth, a year younger than Lee, is now training in New York under Willy Boeckl, a former champion who also coached Lee. Ollie's sister, Gloria, three years younger, is herself no stranger to the ice, having won the Mid-Western women's junior championship last year. She did not compete this year, due to the pressure of school duties. PICTURES presents on this page photographs taken especially for the Post-Dispatch of Ollie Haupt training at the Rockefeller Center open air ice rink in New York.

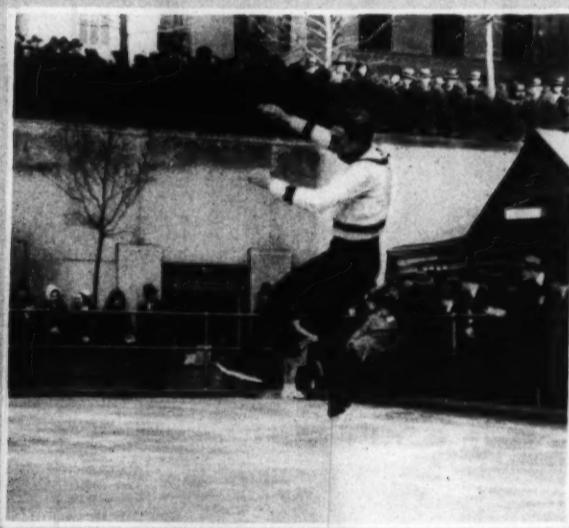

The cards shown here are used by judges to inform the contestants of their points. The lighter numeral, a decimal figure, is added to the dark one and the whole is multiplied by the value of each event in the competition. C. I. Christensen, rink official with Haupt, once won the national title at the age of 51, a feat never equaled.

Elizabeth Reller, who plays in "Grand Central Station," on Friday nights, also is in the cast of the stage hit, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." She's from Indiana.

Peg La Centra, blues singer on the "For Men Only" program.

Betty Lou Gerson was born in Chattanooga, Tennessee. Since 1934, she's acted in NBC dramatic programs.

Noel Mills, born in England 21 years ago, performed in French plays in Montreal as a child, and made her radio acting debut in St. Louis four years ago. She's now on the "Gang Busters," program on Wednesday nights.

Betty Ito, Chicago-born Japanese and a Phi Beta Kappa student when she attended University of Chicago, who appears in serials from NBC Chicago studios.

This is Rosemary Lambright, Chicago actress who is heard in "Arnold Grimm's Daughter," a weekday afternoon program. She formerly was a photographers' model and swimming instructor.

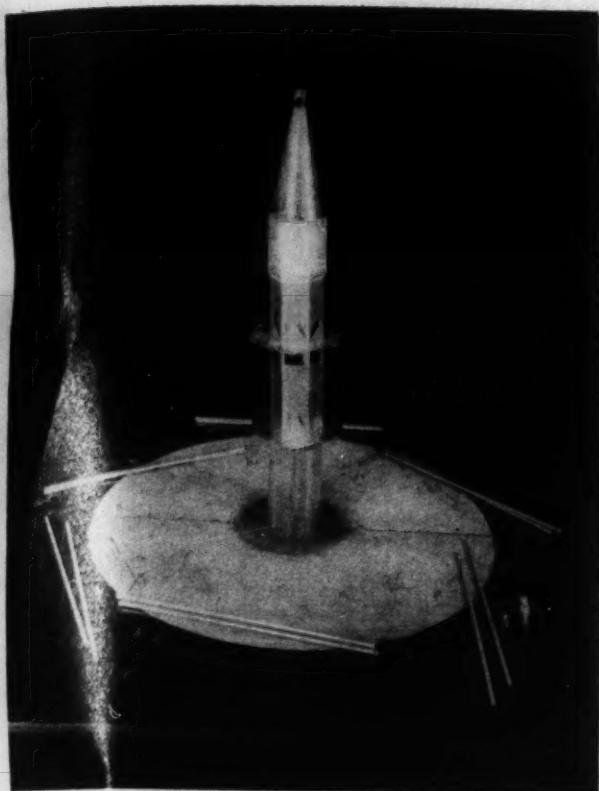

Joan Tetzel, who is only 17, and started acting five years ago while at school in Montreal. She's heard in "Columbia Workshop," "Let's Pretend," and "Americans at Work."

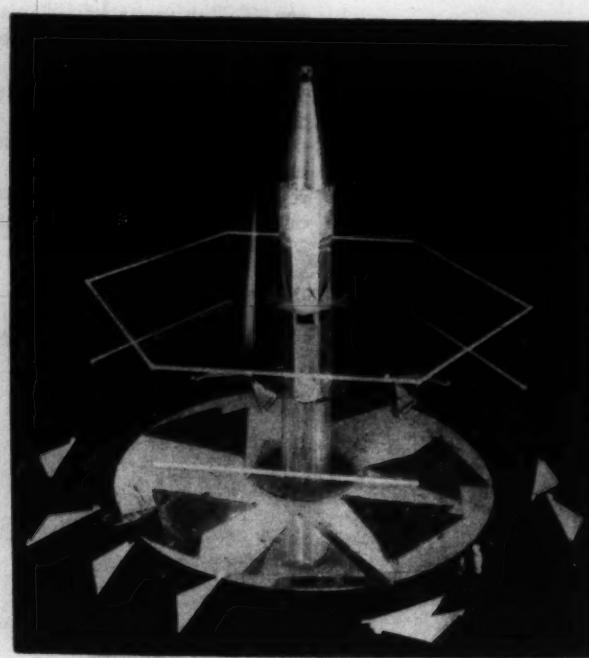

Margery Kelley, NBC actress, is also in demand as a fashion model.

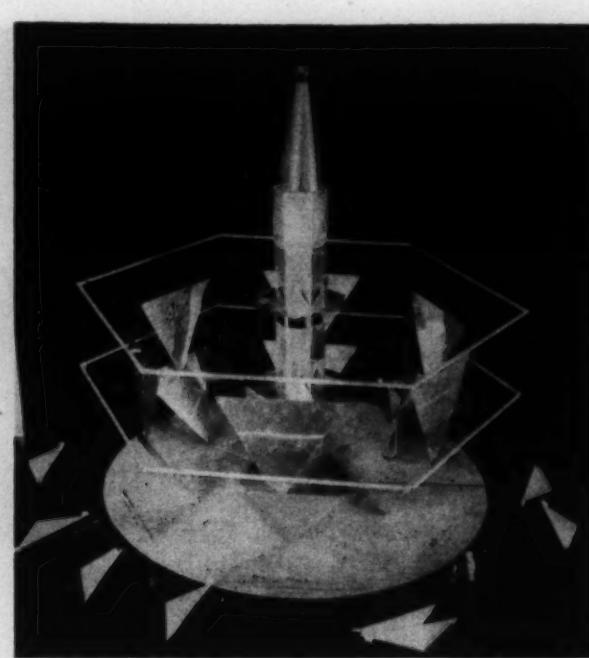

'MAXIMUM EFFICIENCY' HOUSE

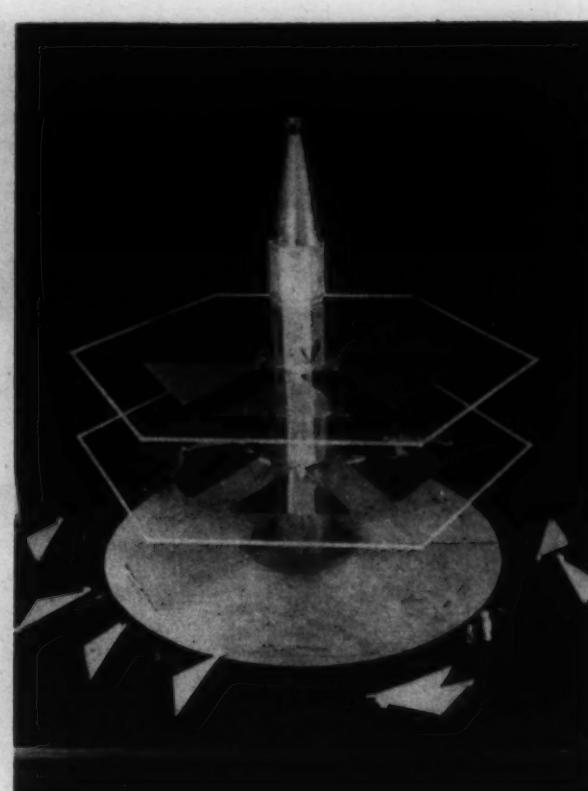

The central mast of Dymaxion House, containing heating, air conditioning, sewage and other units is erected first, then anchored to the ground.

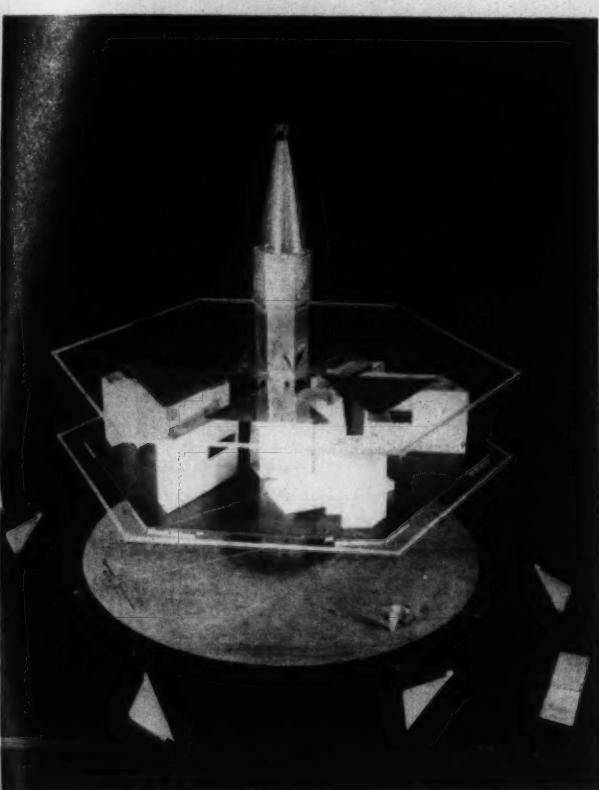

Floor beams then are suspended by steel cables from the top of the mast.

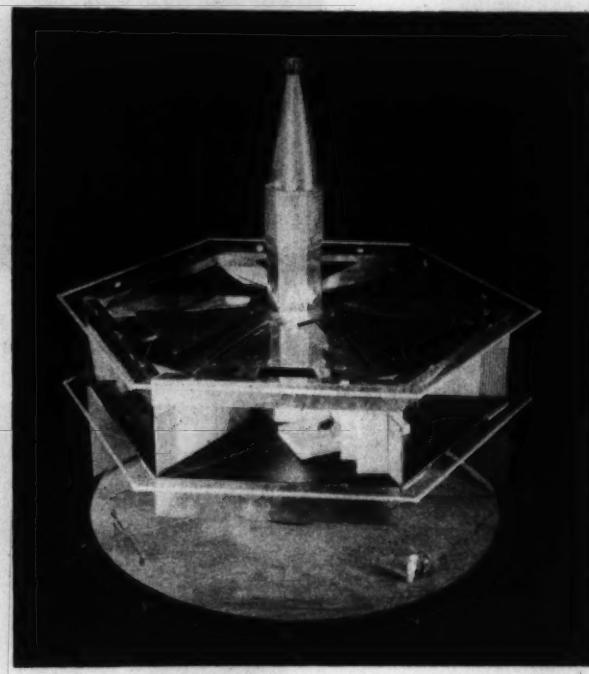

Triangular steel floor plates, attached to the central mast by wire in tension, are placed into position.

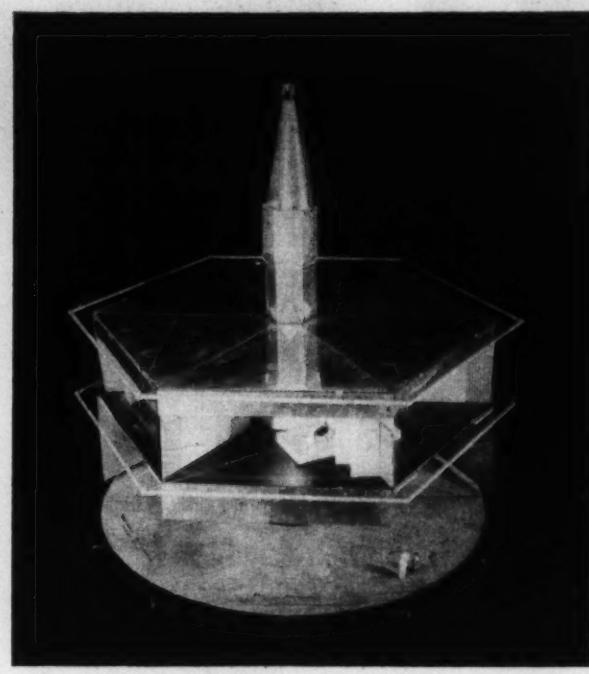

The floor plates are tightened and made completely rigid by turnbuckles.

Bathrooms, closets of revolving shelves, hangers, laundry, cooking grills and other units, manufactured previously in mass production, are then placed in position.

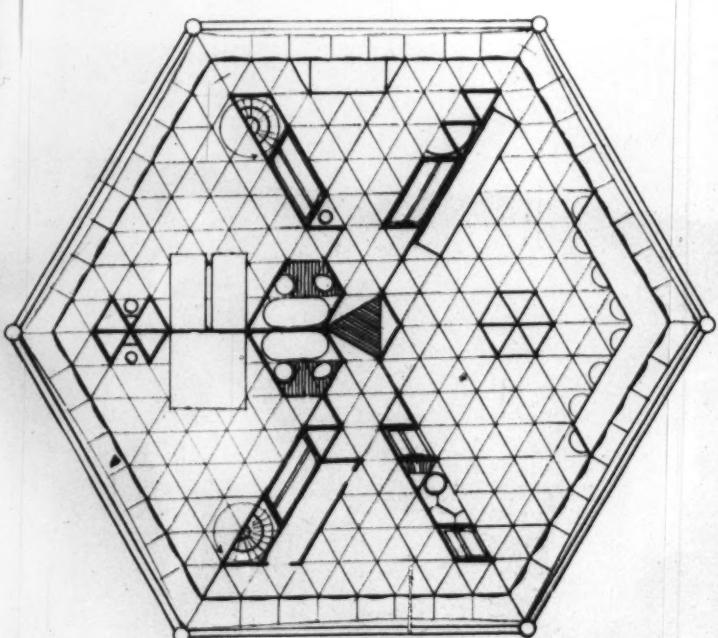

The walls, all transparent, go up next.

Deck plates (flooring) are then roofed over.

With protective hood in place, the Dymaxion House is completed. The space under the hood is a sun deck, the floor beneath contains five rooms, all living equipment. Ground area is given over to garage space.

EARLY 10 years ago, inspired by the urge to design a completely efficient dwelling which could be practically produced and manufactured in mass production, R. Buckminster Fuller, architectural inventor, created Dymaxion House. Unique in almost every detail, his brain child was so christened, he explained, by taking a syllable from "dynamics," the principal employed, from "maximum" referring to efficiency of the structure, and "i-o-n" to imply infinity—a scientifically built home of maximum efficiency.

This house, a model of which in his New York home has been the object of curious study almost since he completed it, is literally hung from a hollow mast, which contains an elevator, light, heat, sewage disposal and air conditioning equipment. By precise engineering principles, the tubular metal framework of the house swings on steel cables, and bracing guys planted in the ground insure rigidity, despite a seemingly fragile appearance. Prisms, mirrors and lenses send light to all parts of the building. The existing model includes living room, study, two bedrooms with separate baths, and a kitchen or service room, and sun deck. The house is elevated, the ground area being used for garage, preferably for the Dymaxion car designed also by Fuller. All floors and beds are soundproof, all furniture is built in, beds are pneumatic, bed clothing is unnecessary because of efficiently regulated air conditioning, closets, lavatory and kitchen equipment revolve, fold into walls or are subject to such disposition that tends to ease in operation and disposal.

The five-room house, mostly steel and glass, would weigh about 6000 pounds, cost in mass production about 50 cents a pound to build, the inventor estimates. His radical views of the architecture of the future were contained in a recently published volume, "Nine Chains to the Moon," which surprised both author and publisher by its unexpected popularity.

GLOOM WEEK ON THE ILLINOIS CAM...

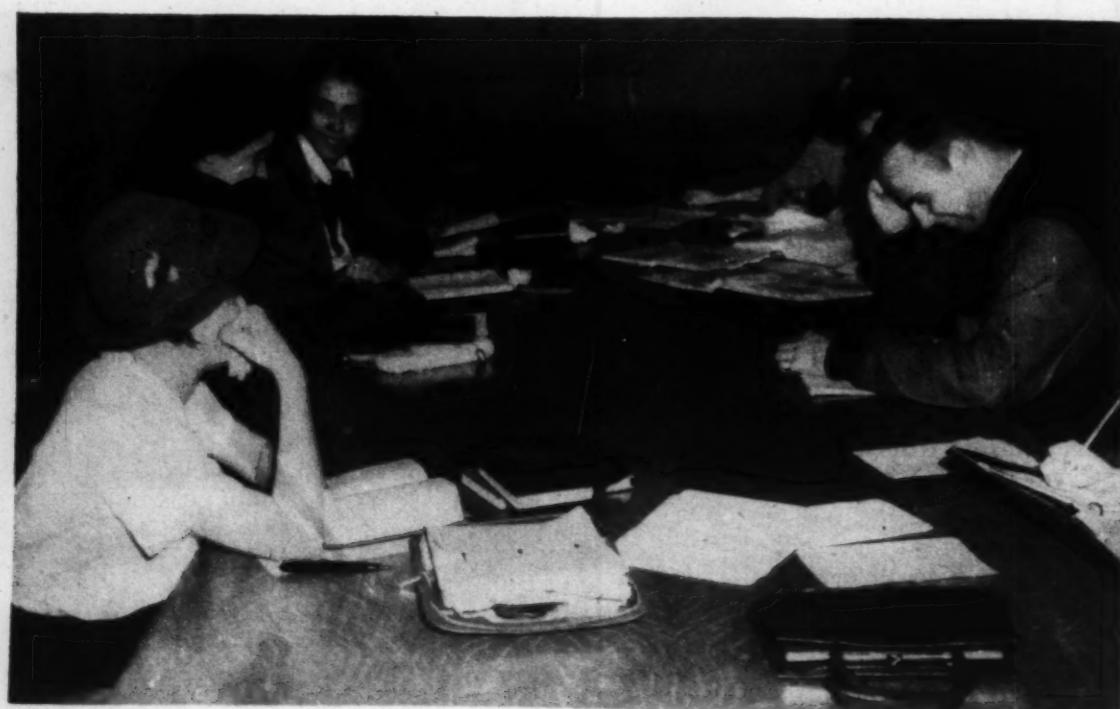

1. This is one of the nicer ways to cram for the exams. Marge Crane from Chicago, the freshman beauty queen last year, and a Pi Beta Phi, with John Varble, a swimming star, a nominee for senior class president, and a member of Sigma Chi.

2. But this is better for really serious study. Marge, left, in her room.

3. Shorts or pajamas—they're the favorite study clothes for girls. Jane Rollo of Murphysboro, president of Pi Beta Phi at Illinois University, likes shorts. She is sponsor of the Pershing Rifles, crack R. O. T. C. drill unit, an honor bestowed each year by a faculty committee on the most beautiful sorority girl.

4. During most of the year less than half the students visit the library. But at exam time 98 per cent rush to reference rooms.

THE University of Illinois is now in the midst of what might be called "Gloom Week." As at most other schools, final examinations for the semester are being given. That means desperate last-minute cramming, worry, no dates, no dances, no fun. When the exams are concluded next Wednesday, about 2000 students out of the enrollment of 13,000 will have flunked, unless past averages are bettered. They will receive dismissal letters, and be barred from the school for one semester. Maybe some won't return at all. For the others who find they have passed, hilarious sling in the presumption of dates, sorority groups until the end.

Preparing for the exams student has to undergo average of five subjects a term's teachings in a week. As would be unavoidable.

5. The "coke date" method is a popular way of studying for exams. No worrying over where the girl or boy friend is, to disturb concentration on books.

6. Trouble piles on trouble. Term papers on assigned themes must sometimes be as long as 5000 words. Many students put them off until the last few days before the term ends, and must stay up all night writing them, in addition to studying for exams.

7. Every well regulated fraternity or sorority keeps a file of past examination questions. Some students believe pros give exam questions out in certain yearly cycles, and try to guess which ones a prof will use in the current exam by going over his record.

11. Zero hour. Students in Professor N. L. Sheres' journalism class at Illinois start their exams.

usually finds expression in a note just off the campus, regarding by beer-happy week-end mornings. It's a serious business. The grilling in each of an 'systems' for 'catching up on what are frantically embraced. such huge group of students.

there is some cheating. Most instructors police their classes during exams and seat the students a desk apart as a guard against cribbing; a few rely on the honor system, some even allowing the pupils to take their examinations at home. If the student fails in three out of five subjects he is dismissed; if he fails two out of five he is placed on probation.

These photographs were taken at the university especially for PICTURES by G. Edwin Popkess Jr., who is a senior in the school of journalism.

8. Freshmen at sorority and fraternity houses have to attend study seminars three hours a night, five nights a week, during the term, and must spend all their spare time in them for 48 hours before examinations. This is a seminar at Pi Beta Phi. However, the 9000 "independent" students at the university have higher scholastic averages than the 4000 fraternity and sorority members, probably because the latter have more social activities.

9. But upper-class girls often slip out for half hour dates even on pre-exam nights.

10. Absorption method. A few students may think that sleeping on books results in absorption of their contents.

Students in a journalism class starting their examination. Success or failure for the term is in the balance.

12. This happens even in the best regulated examinations. There are dozens of time-honored methods of cribbing. Getting caught at it or "plagiarism" of theses leads to instant dismissal. Every few weeks the university newspaper carries a quiet item recording a few such expulsions.

13. The good or bad news. Dismissal letters usually are pink. Sometimes their recipients show up at home with a story to dad of eye trouble.

14. But for the fortunate ones the grind is over and dates begin anew. Here the girls of Pi Beta Phi are responding en masse to the door buzzer to see whose date is calling. These girls are so popular dates with them must be made weeks in advance unless the boy "has a pin" in the house.

15. The celebration is in full swing. Many students who had finished their hard examinations whooped it up at places just off the campus Friday night and last night.

16. It's all over now. Tomorrow, he'll either be in school or out. Right now, he doesn't care much.

"Commodore" Cornelius Vanderbilt (1794-1877), the ferry boat captain who founded the family fortune with a giant railroad empire. When he died, he left more than $100,000,000. His statement "the public be damned," made to a reporter who was attempting to interview him, is still a classic.

William Henry Vanderbilt (1821-85), eldest son of the Commodore, succeeded his father and doubled the fortune.

Cornelius Vanderbilt II (1843-99), eldest son of William, carried on the family fortune.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, son of Cornelius II, was lost at sea in the Lusitania disaster of May 1915. He was the father of the present Governor of Rhode Island, William H. Vanderbilt.

An old-fashioned coach and four takes William H. Vanderbilt and his guests to the arena at Newport where the horses of the fashionable set had their day of competition.

After more than a hundred years of spectacular activity in finance, society and expensive sports, the Vanderbilts, one of "America's 60 Families," have produced a member who has won his way to a high place in the world of politics, the Governorship of Rhode Island. William H. Vanderbilt, great-great-grandson of Cornelius Vanderbilt, the ferry boat captain who founded the family fortune by fighting his way to control of the New York Central and other railroads, jumped into Rhode Island's political picture last November with a force that lifted Republican hopes in his State to the highest point since the party lost control of the House six years ago. Vanderbilt, now 37 years old, made his political debut when he was elected a State Senator in 1928. He was re-elected in 1930 and 1932, but declined to run in 1934. Two years later he was an unsuccessful candidate for Governor. His friends predict great things for him since his election last fall. A seat in the United States Senate will be contested in 1940 and the Republicans have been searching for a candidate. Their confidence in him comes from the fact that, despite his background, it is said he has a facility for meeting on friendly terms with workers, and can be just as at ease chatting with push cart peddlers as with friends at a Newport garden party. His fortune, which brings him an income of more than $250,000 a year, was inherited from his father, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, who died in the Lusitania disaster in 1915. His mother, now Mrs. Paul FitzSimons, is a Republican National Committeewoman.

One of the quieter forms of entertainment.

FOR many employed mothers of St. Louis the Catholic Women's League Settlement, 1025 Selby place, solves a serious problem. It takes care of their children while they are working. Mothers leave small children there on their way to work in the morning, pick them up on their way home in the evening, and have the satisfaction during the day of knowing that their boys and girls are being looked after. To these day nursery youngsters and many others from public and parochial schools the settlement serves a hot lunch at noon. For some of the poorer children this is the only adequate meal of the day. The settlement served more than 25,000 such meals last year. These lunches cost the mothers from one to 10 cents each—if they can afford to pay. If they can't afford to pay anything, the meals are free. The settlement, housed in an old nine-room residence, provides food, recreation and social life for children of all creeds. Mrs. Frederick M. Switzer is president.

LOUNGING IN HOLLYWOOD

Hollywood's idea of what the women should wear while lounging about the house is quite in keeping with its other glorified schemes for dressing them up in public. No exception is this Oriental robe worn by Pauline Moore which is of white taffeta printed with mammoth roses, quilted all over and lined with wine-colored taffeta. A peacock-blue sash gathers in the waist.

Joan Valerie wears a shell-pink satin creation for her leisure hours. A smocked bodice, full circular skirt and floor length sash complete the ensemble.

Lounging should be luxurious in this negligee of powder-blue sheer crepe with chiffon sash and matching blue maribou cape, worn by Jean Rogers. (Photos taken especially for Post-Dispatch PICTURES by the Twentieth Century-Fox Studios)

This house coat might be worn at intimate luncheons, or even tea, for its simplicity is formal enough for such occasions. Anita Louise wears the scarlet velvet coat, which zips up the front and ties with two wide bows in the back to accent a small waistline.

AT HAUTERIVES, about a hundred miles north of Marseille, exists the most unusual structure in France, a sort of Hindu temple that was built by Ferdinand Cheval, an uneducated village postman, as a 33-year labor of love and without aid of workmen or machinery.

Although the building was scarcely known outside the district, some attention has been called to it by release of Cheval's memoirs in which he told how he did it. Cheval, who died in 1924, did not begin work on the "dream castle" until 1879 when he was 43 years old and had been a postman for 20 years. He was moved, he said, by a desire to create something exceptional, to show what a simple postman, the son of a peasant, was capable of. So, while the villagers laughed at his eccentricity, he set to work in his spare time, using only hand implements and working concrete in with stone. When he finished it in 1912, he estimated that he had put in 93,000 working hours. The result was a most fantastic and intricately ornamented building 150 feet long and about 35 feet high, richly imaginative in design, and quite striking from some angles, but of no practical use, as its labyrinthine corridors were not habitable. Cheval constructed his tomb in the same way, taking 10 years and finishing only a year before his death.

Australian Wool—And Why It's Still Outstanding

The monarch of the sheep flock is the stud ram, which at Australian sheep sales brings up to $25,000. Australia sells few sheep of this quality to other countries.

Sheep have a peculiar habit of jumping into the air as they are being driven through a gate. Here a herder keeps a watchful eye on the bounding animals.

After the shearing, the sheep are driven into long narrow pens where they are branded with the flockmaster's mark.

One of the skilled professions of the industry is wool classing, in which experts sort the wool as to type and quality.

Buyers of all nations attend the great wool sales at Sidney, Melbourne and other centers, where they examine the lots to be submitted and make bids.

A flock of sheep in the province of Queensland are mustered in for shearing. Herding them toward the sheds are the remarkably intelligent Kelpie dogs, a breed specially developed for the purpose.

Despite recurrent economic crises causing world markets in many products to fluctuate in great degree, Australia today maintains her supremacy unchallenged in the wool markets of the world. On the vast grassy plains of the country-continent graze more than 100,000,000 sheep, largely of the merino strain, which at the annual shearing yield about a quarter of the world's supply of fine wool. The flockmasters have devoted themselves intensively to scientific methods in their work, so that production has been nearly doubled from the early days, when the fleece of the average merino sheep would yield about four pounds of wool. At the annual shearing, a small army of shearers, wool classers, cooks and other workers are hired to take care of the thousands of sheep, some of them driven into the home paddocks from ranges hundreds of miles away on the vast ranches. After shearing, the wool is classified, baled and carted to the rail head for dispatch to the city where wool sales are held. The greater part of it is then shipped to mills all over the world.

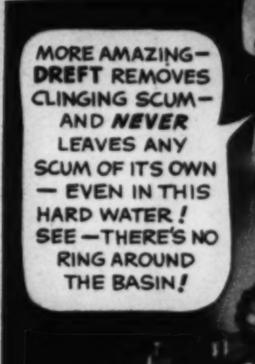

Motor-driven shears, similar to a barber's clippers, remove the fleece. An expert shears from 150 to 300 sheep a day.

At Last...a Better Way to Wash Baby's Woolens!

AMAZING NEW SUDS CREATION ends hard-water scum...helps you keep the most delicate woolens soft and fluffy!

MORE AMAZING—DREFT REMOVES CLINGING SCUM—AND NEVER LEAVES ANY SCUM OF ITS OWN—EVEN IN THIS HARD WATER! SEE—THERE'S NO RING AROUND THE BASIN!

Read Why No Soap Flakes In the World Can Duplicate These Advantages!

NOT in 1,000 years has there been such a startling suds advance as this! Before the introduction of Dreft, no suds in the world could offer these three remarkable advantages for washing fine woolens:

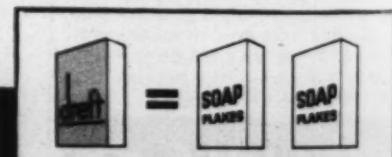

1. SUDS THAT NEVER LEAVE "SCUM" ... assuring true color brightness and fabric softness
2. SUDS OF NON-ALKALINE MILDNESS ... giving you maximum protection against wash-fading
3. RICH SUDS IN HARDEST WATER ... five times more suds than any soap you ever used

Thrilling, isn't it—to know that all your fine woolens can come out of the wash soft and fluffy—that their colors are protected against wash-fading caused by alkali—that Dreft always gives plenty of suds to help you wash delicate woolens clean—and without rubbing, too!

And just as remarkable—Dreft dissolves instantly at any water temperature! Woolens can be washed at the right cool-water temperature to guard against shrinking and fading. And no Dreft particles will be left to spot or streak the fabric!

Wash all your fine woolens this new, safe way! Get Dreft today—and you'll say it's the most exciting washing news in your lifetime! Procter & Gamble.

HOW DREFT SAVES YOU MONEY
One ounce forces, in hard water, Dreft does twice the work of fine-fabric soap! So Dreft goes further—saves you money!

dreft is different!

Football Hero a Real Life Yank at Oxford

Halfback White of Colorado demonstrating his all-America caliber in a 47-yard touchdown run against Rice Institute in the Cotton Bowl game at Dallas, Texas, January 1, 1938.

BYRON (WHIZZER) WHITE, that almost unprecedented combination of all-America football talent and Phi Beta Kappa mental prowess, has begun his studies as a Rhodes scholar at Oxford University, where he probably will study law. A graduate of the University of Colorado, White played a $15,000 season of professional football last year, then gave up further money-making by that means to attend the English university.

Better way to give him COD LIVER OIL

1. Scott's Emulsion—made from selected cod liver oil—is four times easier to digest than plain cod liver oil... because the cod liver oil is broken into tiny, easily digested units by our exclusive process. Children are less apt to regurgitate (spit up) Scott's Emulsion.

2. It is pleasant tasting... easy for children to take.

3. It is rich in Vitamins A and D. Babies and children have thrived on it for 60 years.

ON FINE FRESH COFFEE

Judge Eight O'Clock Coffee on its merits alone. Brew it by your own pet method. What rich aroma . . . what abundant flavor this fine, fresh coffee brings to your cup! You know, instantly, that this is a blend to be cherished, a coffee that will be a lifelong companion.

At once you ask: "How can A&P produce such a truly fine coffee at such a thrifty price?" Here is the answer.

Only men who have made coffee a lifelong study can produce such a superb blend as Eight O'Clock, and then only when the finest obtainable coffee beans are ready to their hands. Our experts make sure of A&P's supply of these choice beans by going directly to the plantations and buying the very pick of the coffee crop.

Once we select the coffee it never leaves our hands. We ship it—blend it—roast it—package it—and proudly present it to you in your A&P Store. There it is ground at the very moment you buy it, and ground exactly right for your method of coffee making—another step to make sure you get the fine, fresh flavor in all its perfection. Remember, fresh grinding is the secret of a cup of good coffee.

Oddly enough, this insistence on perfection saves money for you. Because A&P brings its coffees from plantation to you, many costly handling charges are eliminated, many additional savings introduced. Such savings are passed on to you. That's why thousands who formerly served other nationally known brands now save up to 10¢ a pound by buying Eight O'Clock Coffee. Enjoy fine, fresh coffee at a real saving. Buy a supply of freshly roasted, freshly ground, Eight O'Clock Coffee tomorrow!

ONLY A&P BRINGS YOU THIS COMPLETE COFFEE SERVICE

PLANTATION SELECTION: A&P Coffee is blended from the finest available coffees, selected at the plantations by A&P experts.

THREE DISTINCTIVE BLENDS: A&P Coffee is scientifically blended to give different and distinctive flavors to each of its three brands. Eight O'Clock possesses a mild and mellow flavor, Red Circle is rich and full-bodied; Bokar is vigorous and winey.

AUTOMATICALLY ROASTED: The flavors of these superb coffees attain the peak of perfection through an automatic roasting process.

IN INEXPENSIVE PACKAGES: A&P Coffee comes in attractive, serviceable and inexpensive bags; in the bean, Nature's own flavor seal.

DELIVERED FRESH: A&P Coffee is delivered roaster-fresh to A&P Stores, direct from one of A&P's nearby roasting plants.

This complete Coffee Service is an example of how A&P brings you fine foods at low prices.

OR WEKS-HILDA HOARDER AND BETTY BUNNY WATCHED THEIR HUSBANDS AND O.HUM-THROUGH THE IMPROVED TELESCOPE IN HICKORY HOLLOW- AS THEY EXPERIENCED STRANGE ADVENTURES AS GUESTS OF LUNAR LOOIE ON THE MOON. THEN-THE MOON STARTED TO DARKEN- AND THEY SAW LUNAR LOOIE AND HIS GUESTS FLY AWAY AND DISAPPEAR IN THE CLOUDS THAT COVER THE PLANET VENUS.

I NEVER DID LIKE THAT LUNAR LOOIE FELLOW!!!

I WONDER WHY THEY DIDN'T COME HOME- WHEN THE MOON GOT DARK?

I GUESS LOOIE WOULDN'T LET THEM!

— AND DEEP DOWN INSIDE OF THE NOW DARKENED MOON-SITS LUNAR LENA-LOOKING AT THE PLANET VENUS THROUGH THE MOON'S TELESCOPE

AH-H- JUST AS I THOUGHT- THEY WENT TO VISIT THOSE HUSSIES ON VENUS!!!

JUST WAIT UNTIL I LAY MY HANDS ON LOOIE

HM-M-M-

— AND ON THE PLANET VENUS

ALL RIGHT-BOYS CLIMB OUT-NOW-

THIS IS VENUS!

I FEEL SICK!!

O.HUM CAN'T CLIMB OUT!!

MAYBE WE SHOULDN'T GO AWAY- O.HUM ISN'T FEELING VERY GOOD!!

NONSENSE!! HE'LL BE ALL RIGHT IN A LITTLE WHILE-COME ON-LET ME SHOW YOU AROUND-

I WANT YOU TO MEET STAR DUST AND TWINKLE TWINKLE-

TWO VERY GOOD FRIENDS OF MINE!!!

AND- OUR WIVES CAN'T SPY ON US-BECAUSE-THIS PLANET IS HIDDEN BY CLOUDS HA-HA.

Justice Roberts Decides
Private Utility Companies
Have No Standing
Maintain Suit to Power Development

'NO RIGHT TO BE FREE OF COMPETITION'

Ruling Gives Go-Ahead
Signal for Constructing Dams in Tennessee
ley and Sale of Su Power.

By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—
Supreme Court ruled today that private power companies have legal right to challenge the G overnment's Tennessee Valley Au power program.

In a decision delivered by J
Roberts, the court held the suit had "no right to be fit competition."

In no aspect of the case the appellants standing to make the suit," Justice Roberts said.
Justices Butler and McReynolds dissented, contending the de
"goes too far."

Four Justices joined with J
Roberts—Chief Justice Hughes
Justices Brandeis, Stone and Justice Reed did not participate cause as Solicitor-General he argued a previous TVA case.

Go-Ahead Signal.

The decision gave the G overnment a go-ahead signal for construction of a series of dams in the Tennessee Valley for sale of surplus power pro duction.

The Supreme Court affirmed decree in favor of the Govern ment by a three-Judge United Court in Eastern Tennessee.
three-Judge court had held TVA act constitutional and that utilities "have no immunity if lawful competition even if business be curtailed or destroyed."

The Supreme Court, however, not rule directly on constitu
tity of the TVA.

Competition Not Illegal.

Justice Roberts asserted
"the vice of the position" taken the power companies "is neither their charters nor their franchises involve the grant a monopoly or render competi illegal."

"The franchises to exist as a poration, and to function as a lie utility, in the absence of a specific charter contract on the
"creates no right to be free of petition, and affords the compa
no legal cause of complaint reason of the State's subse authorizing another to enter operate in the same field."

"The local franchises, while ing elements of property, confe
contractual or property right free of competition, either individuals, other public utility porations, or the state or mu larity granting the franchise."

"The grantor may preclude by contract from initiating or mitting such competition, but such contractual obligation is assured."

Justice Roberts said that United States District Court that the Authority has not indu in coercion, duress, fraud or representation in procuring tracts with municipalities, co atives or other purchasers of power has not acted with any malicio malevolent motive; and has conspired with municipalities to other purchaser of power."

"The record justifies the ings," Justice Roberts asserted.

Justice Butler's Dissent.

In his dissent, Justice Butler serted that "unquestionably the shows that complainants are asserting a right held or com on an injury sustained in mon with the general public."

"They allege facts," he said, unmistakably show that each a valuable right as a public non-exclusive though it is to territory covered by its of its business and property will suffer irreparable damage defendants' (TVA) program acts complained of."

"If, because of conflict with Constitution, the act does not authorize the enterprise to and being executed by defen then their conduct is unlaw inflicts upon complainants."
